Kingston Man Slays His Estranged Mate

SHOOTING AT MAN, BARTOW FARMER
SLAYS HIS WIFE

Webb Pless of Kingston Is Jailed After Tragedy at Home. Shotgun Is Death Weapon.

A. P. STONE IS HELD FOLLOWING AFFRAY

Charge Intended for Him Enters Woman's Body.
Estrangement Leads to Fatal Affair.

Rome, Ga., October 8.—(Special.) Shot by her husband who was tempting to shoot another man, Mrs.
Eddie Pless, wife of a Bartow county farmer, died at a local hospital this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. According to details given by the owner of the farm on which the Pless family lived,
Mr. and Mrs. Pless seriously disagreed on Friday and the wife left home, saying that she would not return, nor would she live with her husband again.

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Pless went to the family home for the purpose of getting her personal effects. With her went A. P. Stone. He went, it is said, to help Mrs. Pless bring away her own belongings.

When Pless saw Stone he ordered him from the place and when Stone announced that he expected to stay until Mrs. Pless had no further use for him, Pless is alleged to have taken his shotgun, saying that he would make Stone leave. He was in the act of firing at Stone when the latter either stepped behind Mrs. Pless or pulled her in front of him.

The loud of his shot entered Mrs.
Pless' back near the left kidney. Pless and Stone both went shortly afterwards to Cartersville and surrendered to Sheriff George B. Giddis. They were held pending developments in Mrs. Pless' condition. The latter was brought to Rome this afternoon for an operation but died almost immediately after reaching the city.

The Pless couple have two children, while Stone is the father of four children. Pless says he is a native of Franklin county and has two sisters living in Murray county and a brother in Copper Hill, Tenn.
His wife was Eddie Gohley, a member of a large family living in the Kingston district.

HOLSTEIN BULL WINS McKinley Pieterje Beets Adjudged Grand Champion.

Syracuse, N. Y., October 8.—Mc-Kinley Pieterje Beets, Holstein bull, owned by Frank M. Campbell, of Wilson, today was adjudged grand champion of the United States at the national dairy exposition here. Campbell's entry competed against Sir Francis Mercene Burke, owned by E.
McPhree, of Van Leek Hill, Ont., Canada, champion of bulls under two and one-half years.

PAGES THAT INTEREST ALL!

Every newspaper reader has his favorite page.

You know the man who turns immediately to the sporting section to see the outcome of the game in which he is interested. You know the woman who has to scan the society

PSEUDO COP TOOK THOUSANDS LOOT
FROM PET PARTIES

Memphis, Tenn., October 8.—Police assigned to locate a "petting party" bandit who is alleged to have made nightly expeditions in parks and along the boulevards, exacting tribute from motorists under the pretense that he was a policeman, today chased a man who gave him the name as Joseph Edmond, 26, across the city and placed him in jail for questioning.
According to reports to the police several thousand dollars have been obtained in this manner.

HOPE OF FRANCE
SEEN IN SPEECH

Stresemann Says Poincare Tactics May Bring Open Breach With German Nation.

BY FERDINAND JAHN.

Berlin, October 8.—In a strong appeal to the reichstag for German unity, Chancellor Stresemann included a threat to French hopes by saying that the day might come when Germany would be unable to accept further conditions from her opponents.

The dilatory tactics of Poincare, he declared, might result in a condition where treaties no longer prevailed between Germany and France.

The extraordinary statement of the chancellor can be variously interpreted.
It can be taken to mean that collapse and disintegration may make Germany powerless to fulfill treaties; possibly it meant that a breach with the allies might be expected.

Stresemann declared, however, that in some respects the treaty of Versailles had aided Germany. This was addressed to the reichstag pan-German group, which is insisting on repudiation of the treaty.

The chancellor's address dealt largely with internal affairs, for this great immediate task is to keep the nation in line with his program of reconstruction. The task is not an easy one.

Industrialists Want Control.

The shadow of Hugo Stinnes' darkness Stresemann's career.

Behind scenes, in the hastily-reconstructed government, a silent struggle is going on between the shrewd octopus of German finance, and the rock-ribbed Prussian leader.

Although the cabinet crisis has been temporarily solved, there are signs of a new one in the offing.

Flogging Victim Placed in Jail
On Lunacy Writ

Macon Man Lost Mind as Result of Whipping, Is Belief.

Macon, Ga., October 8.—(Special.)
One of the victims of the "flogging gang" in Macon, Ben Green, of Columbus road, a carpenter, who was taken out and whipped last summer, was today committed to jail on a writ of lunacy sworn out by his wife.

According to relatives, Green imagined last Friday morning that he was being attacked by some one while on his way to work and, returning home that night, he discovered a shotgun through the floor of his dwelling. Today he was stopped by a man, while going to work. The man asked him where he was employed and Green, who was with his little daughter, was badly frightened.

Today Green, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, went to the sheriff's office, one of the girls carrying a shotgun with her. Green exhibited signs of fear while talking with deputy sheriffs and Mrs. Green, on advice of the sheriff, took out the writ of lunacy.

Mrs. Green told the sheriff the family moved a few days after the flogging. But received an unsigned letter stating they had not moved far enough. Since then the family has moved three times.

Mrs. Green says her husband's health has steadily declined since he was flogged.

Kiwanians Will Hold
Fourth Today—Fireworks Will Show the Burning of Atlanta Tonight.

Today At the Fair.

The program for Tuesday, Ki-wanian day, has been announced as follows:

8:00 A. M.—Gates open.

9:00 A. M.—Midway opens.

10:00 A. M.—Judging of cattle and hogs.

11:00 A. M.—Judging of agricultural exhibits.

12 noon—Kiwanians meet at Fletcher Maffett's to form parade in automobiles.

1:00 P. M.—Kiwanian parade and luncheon.

1:30 P. M.—Horse racing and free hippodrome acts.

7:30 P. M.—Free hippodrome acts.

9:00 P. M.—Fireworks display —"Battle of Atlanta" and "Burning of Atlanta."

12:00 Midnight—Gates close.

Spalding county, Georgia, walked away with first honors for both the best county and the best individual exhibit from all the southeast Monday, while more than 60,000 persons pressed through the Southeast Fair turnstiles and established a record for the greatest single day's attendance in the history of the institution. The greatest record of the past was 53,000 in 1916.

The record-breaking crowd and the record-breaking number and quality of live stock and agricultural exhibits at this year's fair indicate that the southeast has recovered from depression and is entering upon the most prosperous period since the civil war. Oscar Mills, president of the fair association, asserted.

Legion of Children.

Monday was school day and a majority of the legions in attendance was composed of Atlanta school children who were given a holiday to see the fair.

The fair was ready for them.
In the agricultural hall exhibits were complete.

In the live stock building the last pens of swine and stalls of cattle were being brushed and dandied up for the judging that begins today.

In the liberal arts building ornate displays were in place, representing many leading business institutions of the southeast.

Atlanta florists were preparing for Tuesday's exhibition of their finest flowers.

The Johnny Jones midway shows, rising as a touch of magic from the clouds of dust their trucks had made during the early hours of morning, were ready when the gates opened to the thousands of eager children and grown-ups at 8 o'clock and were running in full, tuneful and noisy blast at 9 o'clock.

Race Horse Program.

Race horses that have conquered on the fastest tracks in the south were in their paddocks and whirled around the track in a sensational race card Monday afternoon.

Fireworks of dazzling splendor painted in flames for the thousands a Venetian water carnival at night.
No such daytime attendance as Monday's is expected for Tuesday but the night crowds are expected to exceed even those of the record-breaking day when the battle and burning of Atlanta will be reenacted in pro-technic displays tonight.

Thousands of eager looks have been cast for three days across the lake on the lath and canvass village which has been prepared for the flames.
The principal churches, business houses and homes of the Atlanta of 1864 have been rebuilt, modeled exactly after those pictured in a panorama.

Unique Situation Develops

state department of agriculture, developed into a "battleground" of L. C. Brown, known to his hundreds of friends around Georgia legislative

Monday session.

L. C. Brown and J. J. Brown, it

AVIATOR KILLED
AS WINGS BREAK
OFF IN MID-AIR

St. Paul, Minn., October 8.—Harry
J. Quinn, St. Paul aviator, was killed near here this afternoon when the wings of a new monoplane he was testing dropped off at an altitude of about five hundred feet.

Quinn, flying a plane rebuilt from a standard machine by Professor Charles Boehlman, of department of aeronautics, of the University of Minnesota, had climbed to a height of 1,500 feet. Then the ship was seen to diverge. At about 500 feet the wings, apparently unable to withstand the tremendous strain, collapsed and fluttered to the ground.

BRITISH PAPERS
ROUSE NEW HOPE
FOR TREATY PLAN

Washington Officials
Note Favorable Expressions Regarding 12-Mile Zone Pact.

Washington, October 8.—Expressions in British newspapers recently favorable to the acceptance by Great Britain of the 12-mile treaty plan proposed by Secretary Hughes to curb liquor smuggling into the United States has caught the attention of officials here. While hope is entertained that deliberations of the British imperial conference will result in the decision to comply with Secretary Hughes' suggestion, it was emphasized today that no authoritative indication has been received that such action would be taken.

Additional data in support of the American treaty plan for dealing simultaneously with rum-smuggling and the inconveniences occasioned by British ships by enforcement of the Volstead act has been laid before the British foreign office by Ambassador Harvey.
In effect this is in answer to points made in the reply of the foreign office to the American proposal and were submitted prior to the meeting of the imperial conference in order that British officials might have a complete statement of the American viewpoint when the conference took up the question.

Would Be Special Pact.

Great Britain's reply frankly stated that the foreign office was not favorably inclined toward the 12-mile limit of search and seizure proposal. The specific objections made are not considered as insuperable from the Washington viewpoint. In the communications to the foreign office made by Mr.
Harvey, therefore, it is understood that the American proposition was explained at greater length.

The chief British objection, so far as known has been based on the fear that the plan might involve in some degree the rule of international law that recognizes the three-mile limit
as the limit of territorial jurisdiction.
The Washington government takes an exactly contrary view of the probable effect of a specific agreement to extend that limit up to twelve miles for the stated purpose of preventing smuggling of contraband articles into either country. In the American view such a special agreement would only serve to make the general three-mile rule stronger since it would be noted in the special treaty that it was an exception from a principle of international law.

KELS STANDS PAT
WAIVING CHANGE FOR MERCY PLEA

Author of California's Weirdest Murder Refor Counsel.

Stockton, Cal., October 8.—Alexander A. Kels, a leading citizen of the community of Lodi, Cal., and confessed perpetrator of a weird murder, meant to shield him from financial disaster, began straightening up his earthly affairs tonight in the expectation of being sentenced Wednesday to death on the gallows at San Quentin prison.

"Nothing remains to be done," Superior Judge D. M. Young said after a long and exhaustive examination of the prisoner today. "The court has gone fully into the evidence, and all that is left is the judgment."

Judge Young intimated that the sentence would be death when he told Kels, "I cannot entertain any mercy, and I hope you understand that."

Kels replied indifferently that he did.

In keeping with its previous statements the prosecutor's office made no recommendations of any kind. Kels virtually delivered himself up to the court without a plea or appeal, going so far as to deliberately turn behind him the last bridge that might lead to mitigation of the judgment. He flatly refused the offer of the court that he be given counsel, an offer repeated many times during the examination today and as often refused with emphasis.

He Is Satisfied.

"Mr. Kels," the judge said at last,
"I cannot get up from this seat of mine and go out and get evidence that would be favorable to you. I can only conduct a superficial examination to determine the degree of the crime. An attorney would be able to investigate thoroughly for you and bring in many facts that might be helpful to you."

"I understand that," the prisoner replied, "but I am satisfied to let the thing rest as it is."

Judge Young then set the date of sentence for Wednesday.

Kels was charged with the murder of "One John Doe, true name unknown," and believed to have been Ed
Meevey, a ranch hand.

Following the recital of the details of the crime, Judge Young questioned

Washington, October 8.—The su-

Another Alleged Bunco Man Falls
Into Net of Law

Elmer Doud Will Soon Be Brought to Atlanta
For Trial.

Elmer Doud, alleged confidence man and member of the bunco gang which swindled several hundred victims out of more than $5,000,000 in 1919-20 and 21, in Atlanta and other cities has been apprehended by Postoffice Inspector H. M. Graham, in Buffalo, N. Y., according to a wire received by Solicitor General John A.
Boykin, Monday.

Doud's arrest, which came after a chase that extended across the continent several times and into Mexico, and covered a period of more than two years, was due to the untiring efforts of Inspector Graham and officials of Solicitor Boykin's office, who have been unremitting in their determination to capture him.

The charge upon which he was taken into custody was that of using the mails with intent to defraud and conspiracy to violate federal statutes.
It is charged that Doud was the official steerer for the gang headed by Floyd Woodward and Abe Powers, that operated a fake racing cup emporium on West Peachtree street.

Abe Powers, now serving a term in the federal penitentiary, in a sworn statement to local officials recently declared the Woodward gang consisted of approximately 75 individuals who received their orders and instructions from the leader, Floyd Woodward.
Out of this number Doud's arrest marked the 23rd member to be apprehended.

In the telegram to Solicitor Boy-

Solicitor General John A. Boykin, Monday, Inspector Graham stated that Doud, in the custody of a federal officer would be returned to Atlanta and ar-date.

Monday afternoon Governor Walker last night refused to honor requisition papers for Frank Barrett, Julian Barrett and Thomas Barrett, Jr., members of the firm of Barrett & Co.,
Inc., cotton factors, of Augusta, Ga.
Requisition had been requested by the governor of South Carolina on charges preferred by a resident of Aiken county, S. C.

The governor based his refusal on the ground that the evidence presented before him at the hearing at the capital plainly showed that the firm was solvent and in good condition at the time of the transaction complained of,
and that there was no misrepresentation,
as charged.

The firm of Barrett & Co., Inc., has been adjudged in involuntary bankruptcy and its affairs are now being administered by a referee in bankruptcy appointed by the U. S. court.

Walker's Decision.

In announcing his decision, Governor Walker pointed out that the firm of Barrett & Co., Inc., had had dealings with the family of J. W. Lybrand, shown to be the chief accused in the case, for many years, doing a business totalling many millions of dollars, and that there had been no hint of charges of misdealing until after the firm went into bankruptcy.

$10,000 Saved To Flour Buyers

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of flour which is taking place throughout the country, the L. W. Rogers Company, following its accustomed policy of always giving to its patrons the full benefit of low prices through its big buying power, is NOT going to raise its flour prices until present stocks—and those under contract—have been exhausted.

This supply, normally, should last us about 30 days. However, with the increase generally on flour, and with our determination to continue to sell this stock at our present fixed prices, it will not last longer than from ten days to two weeks.

Of course, we could do as many others do—increase our prices right now and make additional profit over what we expected. But in refusing to do this we will SAVE to our flour patrons within the next few days something more than ten thousand dollars.

When we tell you that from thirty thousand to forty thousand homes throughout this section are continual users of some one of our five good brands of flour, you must surely be convinced of the unusually high quality of it. All of our flour is milled by one of the best and oldest concerns in the South, J. Allen Smith & Co., Knoxville, Tenn. It is milled from the choicest of soft winter wheat, and out of the identical grain of wheat comes three excellent brands. The difference in these brands is only the difference between the very whitest and lightest of flour and flour a little darker in color.

The very highest grade in these brands is our White Lily Flour, both in plain and self-rising. LaRosa, a fancy patent flour, and Rogers' "37," a self-rising, both being of the same grade, and Sure-Nuff, the final grade, a good, wholesome self-rising flour.

All of these grades, when compared with grades claimed to be of similar character, stand at the very top, and at the prices we have been selling them will average around 20 to 25 cents lower on each 24-pound sack.

If you will take our advice you will buy a quantity of some one of these brands at any Rogers store immediately, so that you can take advantage of the contracts we have at the lowest prices. When present stocks are exhausted, unless there is some unexpected turn in the market, we will go into the market and pay perhaps as much as one dollar or more per barrel for our flour—but until that time comes our patrons are to be given the advantage of buying at our present prices.

$309,520.66 Gain Reported in Auto License Tag Sale

Fees obtained by the state treasury from the sale of automobile license tags during the fiscal year 1923 up to October 1 amounted to $2,108,625.06, an increase of $309,520.66 over the same period in 1922, according to announcement Monday by Charles Cook, of the secretary of state department.

On October 1, 1923, 147,449 licenses had been issued for passenger cars and 21,000 for trucks. Of this number, approximately 20,000 passenger automobiles and 5,000 trucks are in the city of Atlanta, it was stated. Last year on October 1 there were 128,655 passenger machines and 16,987 trucks registered with the secretary of state.

"A crusade by the Atlanta police," said Mr. Cook, "shows that hundreds of numbers are being operated by parties illegally because licenses have not been transferred to them by the original owner."

"In not transferring his number when he sells the car, the original owner makes himself liable for all acts of the new owner. It also is a violation of the motor vehicle law to transfer a license from one car to another. There is only one legal way to transfer an automobile license, and that is to transfer it when you sell your car to the new owner. Do not transfer it to your new car. Do not borrow a dealer's tag; this is a violation of the law when used on private cars."

CITY CLUB GIVES WELCOME PROGRAM TO EDGAR WATKINS

Edgar Watkins, president of the City Club of Atlanta, who has been ill at a local hospital for about five weeks, was extended an official welcome by the club at the regular luncheon Monday.

The log cabin group was in charge of entertainment features, which included a responsive address by Mr. Watkins, several numbers by the Big Bethel quartet and the reading of the weekly newspaper of satire by Joseph E. Reed, of the Reel Auto company.

Included in the log cabin group, headed by C. W. McClure, are about 25 members who spent the earlier days "in or at least near" a log cabin.

Greek Educational Association To Hold First Meeting Here

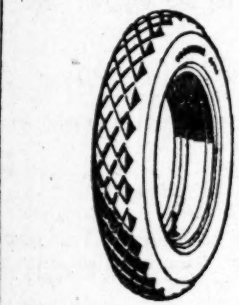

Preparations for the first annual convention of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive association, which will be held in Atlanta October 14-17, are completed, it was announced Monday by Howard L. North, director of the association. National headquarters of the organization are in the Flatiron building here.

The purpose of the organization is to promote and encourage loyalty to the United States, to teach the tenets of democracy and to fit members for participation in political, civic and social life of the nation.

A meeting will be held at the Greek Orthodox church Sunday night, and the morning session on Monday will be held at the assembly room of the chamber of commerce, with N. D. Chotas, president, presiding.

Other speakers will include Mayor Walter Sims, Attorney George N. Napier and Congressman William D. Upshaw. Luncheons, automobile tours, theater parties and other entertainments are planned for the delegates.

Officers of the association in addition to the president are P. J. Stamos, secretary; H. Angelopoulos, treasurer, and Howard L. North, director.

GIVING BAD CHECK NOT SUFFICIENT DIVORCE CAUSE

A bogus check given by a husband to his wife is not sufficient cause for granting a divorce, Judge W. D. Ellis, of Fulton superior court, ruled Monday in the petition of Mrs. Catherine Renabaker against her husband.

Mrs. Renabaker told the jury her husband had given her a bad check and caused her considerable embarrassment when she attempted cashing it. Following the judge's ruling, Attorney Ralph McClelland, representing Mrs. Renabaker, withdrew the suit.

Two Municipal Court Judges Are Reelected

Judges T. O. Hathcock and L. F. McClelland, of the municipal court of Atlanta, were reelected at a meeting of Fulton superior court judges held in the court house Monday. Governor Walker will be asked to confirm the election immediately.

In the case of Judge McClelland, who was nominated by a vote of three to one, Judge John D. Humphries, of the criminal division, declined to case his vote for the nominee on the grounds that the latter intended seeking another elective position next year.

"My reasons for declining to vote for the renomination of Judge McClelland," asserted Judge Humphries, "are applicable to every one who might seek appointment to a judicial position. I do not believe any one is justified in seeking appointment to a judicial position unless, in case he receives the appointment, he in good faith intends to enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office for the term to which he is named."

Friends of Judge McClelland seeking my vote for him, have stated positively that he will be a candidate next year for another office. Judge McClelland declined to deny the correctness of the speakers. I feel that he should not ask judges of the superior court to renominate him for the appointment by the governor to succeed himself to the position he now holds, under the circumstances.

It is generally understood, although Judge McClelland declined to state his position, that he intends offering as a candidate for re-election of the newly created criminal court division to succeed G. H. Howard, who, it is understood will seek the position of the supreme court bench next held by Judge Richard B. Russell. The latter, according to rumor, will retire in order to enter the race for congress.

Credit Men Will Be Dinner Hosts To Tax Commission

Georgia's tax commission appointed by Governor Walker to thoroughly investigate tax needs and problems of the state, will hold a public hearing in the house of representatives at 10 o'clock this morning. This hearing will be followed by a dinner, tendered to the commission by the Atlanta Association of Credit Men, at 8:30 Tuesday night, and the public hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Governor Walker stressed the point Monday that, although these hearings are to be held in Atlanta, every citizen of the state is invited to appear before the commission and lay his views on the tax problem before it. If they cannot come in person, they are asked to submit their opinions in the form of a brief, which the commission will carefully consider before drawing up its final report and recommendations.

Following the dinner Tuesday night there will be an open discussion of all revenue proposals. The Credit Men's association includes in its membership representatives of every line of business and it is believed that important facts will be developed from discussion of the problem with these men.

LOVERS OF JAZZ WILL GET TREAT IN CASTLE SHOW

Lovers of jazz music have a treat in store for them Friday night at the auditorium when Irene Castle makes her first appearance in Atlanta, for she is bringing with her Duke Yellman and his orchestra of eight Broadway musicians.

When the Selwyns announced Miss Castle's tour there were immediate applications from several orchestra directors for a place with her company, but the producers left it to the dancer to make her selection.

It was only after trying out several well-known organizations in New York that she chose the Yellmans, not only because of their already established reputation, but because Duke Yellman is a most accomplished musician and arranger of popular music, and Miss Castle found they could work wonderfully together.

Others in the company besides Miss Castle and William Fearndon, her dancing partner throughout her recent London season, will include Leo Beers, pianologist; Wallace Glavin, the conjurer; and Mary Howard, mezzo-soprano. Seats are on sale this week at the Cable Piano company, under the management of the Southern Musical Bureau.

City Manager Regime Favored In Albany Vote

Albany, Ga., October 8.—(Special.) At an election here today the vote of Albany ratified a bill passed by the legislature in August providing for commission-city manager government for Albany. It will go into effect the first week in January.

Of chief interest to the people of Albany, however, is the hope that ratification of this bill by a substantial majority will mark an end of the political factionalism which divided the community for more than a year. The fight for commission government found its way into the courts, going to the supreme court of Georgia and then to the United States supreme court. The bill ratified today was a compromise measure on which the leaders of both local factions were able to agree, and with its passage the litigation in the courts was dropped. This was part of the agreement. There was no organized fight against the bill today and commission government will go into operation in January with the endorsement of the people behind it.

Atlanta Methodists Prepare Programs For Children's Week

Atlanta Methodist churches are perfecting plans for the observance of Children's week October 1 to 21. It was announced Monday from the offices of Homer Thompson, superintendent of the Sunday School board of the North Georgia conference of the Methodist church. Every Atlanta congregation will attempt to carry out the entire program as outlined by the central board, it was said.

Included in the program for the observance are Home Visitation committees, composed of Sunday school teachers. Automobiles will be furnished so that all teachers can visit students.

Speakers will discuss "The Power of Example," "The Child—A Citizen" and "Home Training, and the Problem of Authority." These talks will be given in short 15-minute speeches, and the most prominent educators in each vicinity have been enlisted for the addresses.

Children's week observance in the conference is under the direction of Miss Corinne Little, superintendent of the North Georgia conference; Mrs. J. W. Setze, chairman of the Atlanta Elementary council; Mrs. O. E. Stewart, elementary superintendent of the North Atlanta district and various committees in the local churches.

TWO Kamper's STORES

Both Stores Closed
12 O'Clock Wednesday

WE want our employees to attend the Southeastern Fair for a little outing; a little recreation and a great deal of education as to what the intelligent, thinking and foresighted Georgia farmer is doing and how he is prospering both because and in spite of the Boll Weevil.

It is said that some years ago a little community in Alabama erected a monument to "The Beneficent Boll Weevil," because of the fact that he caused the farmers of that section to change their crops and methods of farming from the age-old one-crop system to a diversified line that paid them better.

We believe that every community in Georgia could well afford to do as the little Alabama town did—erect the Boll Weevil as a public benefactor for being the most important factor in converting this fair state of ours from a one-crop agricultural condition to an immense food producing workshop.

We Georgians have the most wonderful opportunities in the world; blessed as we are with ideal climatic conditions, fertile soils and freedom from a disturbing labor element, it only requires intelligent application to make our state a veritable Arcadia—literally a land flowing with milk and honey.

WE WANT OUR EMPLOYEES TO VISIT THE FAIR AND SEE FROM THE EXHIBITS JUST WHAT CAN BE DONE—JUST WHAT IS BEING DONE BY THE FARMERS OF OUR STATE WHO HAVE MATCHED HUMAN WITS, INGENUITY AND ENERGY AGAINST THE SO-CALLED PEST WHICH IS PROVING TO BE A REAL BLESSING TO THE SOUTH.

1 CUT, 1 IN TAIL IN MACON FIGHT

Macon, Ga., October 8.—Police believe that there is a flopping gang plot behind a cutting affray here to night following which W. B. Bullock, formerly proprietor of a store on the outskirts of the city, was sent to hospital with a long gash in his neck.

Bullock, with blood streaming from the wound, attacked Robert Barfield, the alleged leader of the gang, with his bare fists and also put him in the hospital.

Barfield later was booked at police headquarters on a series of charges, most serious of which was that of assault with intent to murder.

Two months ago Bullock said he received a warning to leave the city at once. He left, returning from Miami, Fla., a week ago.

Since his return, he says, he has been watched or followed by a man whom he believes to be connected with a flopping gang. He says that this man was with Barfield tonight and called at his home last night at a late hour.

Bullock was on Broadway tonight when he says Barfield stopped from behind him and threw his arms around his neck, slashing his neck while he had him in a headlock.

The police say that Barfield a few years ago shot and killed Dennis Strong in a gambling house on Poplar street, and some four years ago cut and seriously wounded Henry Watts, of Jones county, in a Mulberry street pool room. He came clear, however, during the trials.

Sheriff Hicks and his men are investigating the flopping gang feature of the case, along with the assault which was announced from his office to night.

RESULTS GRATIFYING IN METHODIST DRIVE

Results of the first day's work in the Methodist educational pledge drive for week far surpassed expectations. Dr. Elam Dempsey, educational secretary of the north Georgia conference of the Methodist church, stated Monday night. The effort on the part of the committee is to effect payment of back pledges which all due November 1, 1921 and 1922.

The drive for payment of week pledges will be continued throughout the week in an effort to keep the states of Methodists in Georgia clean on the payment of the $1,500,000 educational pledge.

James A. Harmon, secretary of the South Georgia conference, has the drive of the South Georgia conference in hand, and reports success.

A short address was made Monday morning by Dr. Dempsey to members of the Methodist pastors' conference in Atlanta. Three-minute speeches have been made in all Methodist churches and more than 80,000 leaflets and letters have been sent from the office of the north Georgia secretary in preparing for the drive. Payments Monday came from the states of Florida and Alabama as well as from Georgia.

There was a Doctor McDade, whose rent had never been paid; in The Yucatan Age. And then his fortune was made.

Education Board Will Seek Funds To Pay Teachers

Funds to pay teachers' salaries in November and December will be sought and bids of $408,000 on the new Girls' High school, for which insufficient money has been provided, will be considered by the board of education in session at the city hall this afternoon.

The board has no way of raising money in addition to its fixed proportion of the city's total revenues, while city council is pinching pennies in an effort to get through the year without a deficit and has no money for a special appropriation to the schools.

The fate of the Girls' High school project is still considered uncertain in view of the fact that the bond commission, which meets Wednesday, has gone on record in the past as refusing to recommend acceptance of bids for which there is no money at hand to pay.

The commission will probably refer the girls' high bids to its schools and finance committees for a report at a meeting two weeks hence. It will then go to council at a November meeting with the commission's recommendation, either to accept or reject.

Council is then slated to take up the question of a special 1924 appropriation for the project, to which Mayor Walter A. Sims has pledged his support.

Atlanta's finances, according to Controller B. Graham West, Monday, probably will be in better shape at the end of this year than ever before if present estimates of revenue are sustained by collections.

SIX ARE POISONED IN COOKING MISTAKE

Michigan City, Ind., October 8.—Six persons are in a serious condition here today, the result of eating biscuits in which a poison was used by mistake instead of baking powder.

The poison, used in the biscuits, is generally regarded as fatal although of slow action.

"FORGET-ME-NOT DAY" WILL BE OBSERVED

Washington, D. C., October 8.—On the eve of a tour of the United States in the interests of 100,000 wounded and disabled American veterans of the world war whom he represents as national commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, James A. McFarland, of Dalton, Ga., today announced that several hundred cities and towns in all sections of the country, in addition to those communities where the disabled American veterans already have a chapter functioning, will stage local drives on "National Forget-me-not day," to be observed throughout the United States on Saturday, November 3.

National Commander McFarland, who was the first veterans' official to greet President Calvin Coolidge when the nation's chief executive took office at the white house, will be among the distinguished guests at the fifth annual national convention of the American Legion to be held in San Francisco October 15 to 19. McFarland is one of the various veterans' leaders invited to the great legion convulse as guests of the American Legion's national commander, Alvin Owsley, of Denton, Texas.

McFarland plans several speaking engagements en route to the Pacific coast, and in his travels he is promulgating a thorough and enthusiastic fulfillment of "Forget-me-not activities on Saturday, November 3."

Throughout the country, thousands of pretty girls, club women and other feminine workers, will distribute the little forget-me-not flowers to public-spirited citizens. Proceeds thus derived will be used for national and local relief, welfare, educational and rehabilitation work in the interests of the disabled and wounded American world war veterans.

In each community a leading bank will serve as treasurer of the committee and will handle all funds taken in from the sale of forget-me-nots.

GEORGIAN IS GUEST OF DENVER CITIZENS.
Denver, Colo., October 8.—(Special.)—Denver is host today to National Commander James A. McFarland, of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, who is guest of the city for two days.

The Dalton, Ga., ex-service man who heads the disabled veterans' organization arrived here Monday at 7:30 o'clock and proceeded directly to the Fitzsimons hospital. Later he was a dinner guest of Denver Civic and Commercial association.

Tuesday afternoon he will formally open the five-day veterans' home jubilee program at Overland park after which he will witness the afternoon's harness and running races and rodeo contests.

Interesting announcements concerning veterans' affairs are expected upon his visit here owing to three important conferences recently held with President Coolidge at the white house.

Commander McFarland will leave Tuesday night for Salt Lake City and San Francisco. At the latter place he will address the national convention of the American Legion.

Shout of "Earthquake" Causes Bad Stamped In Streets of London

London, October 8.—Shouts of "earthquake! earthquake!" in a crowded street market in the East End yesterday caused a stampede in which a number of people were trampled, hundreds of cages animals crushed and miscellaneous property ruined or stolen.

The scene of the disaster was the narrow Slater street, Bethnal Green, a noted center for the sale of animals for domestic pets. Local traders say that an auction was in progress in the open streets when a band of toughs rushed into the throng of marketeers and spectators and yelled "earthquake!"

The crowd fled screaming while the stalls were overturned. The cages birds and animals and other property that fell in the path of the mob suffered severely, many of the creatures being trampled to death and many of the people falling among them to be trampled themselves.

Women and children shrieked, maimed dogs howled, parrots screeched and chickens squawked. A number of birds escaped, fluttering wildly about the street after gaining a freedom from what was destined to end in starvation.

The Daily Mail says 60 persons were injured, 2,000 small cage birds were either killed or escaped and 100 dogs and cats and scores of poultry were killed.

The terror of the crowd was increased by the explosion of bottles of gasoline in one of the overturned stalls, which led to the shooting was in progress. The dealers assert that the whole affair was an organized raid by a gang of thieves.

FLORIDA BANK FAILS TO OPEN ITS DOORS

Gainesville, Fla., October 8.—The Florida Bank and Trust company here failed to open its doors today and will remain closed possibly two or three weeks pending arrangement of plans to reopen the institution, according to a statement issued by the bank's board of directors.

The statement said the closing was necessitated by "continuous and heavy withdrawals" and failure to liquidate loans rapidly enough to meet withdrawals. A representative of the state comptroller has taken over affairs at the bank.

Woman Is Injured; Auto Is Wrecked In 30-Foot Fall

While garage men were attempting Monday night to remove her wrecked automobile from the tracks of the N. C. & St. L. railroad at the Hills Park crossing, Mrs. Marie Weeks, pretty 22-year-old woman of 115 1/2 Cooper street, was taken into Grady hospital for treatment of injuries received when she drove the machine over the 30-foot embankment to the tracks beneath. Her condition is not serious.

Witnesses said she appeared to have been blinded by the lights of another machine that was crossing the bridge. There is a sharp turn at the approach, and Mrs. Weeks is said to have kept going straight ahead.

ALLEGED ESCAPED
GEORGIA CONVICT
GIVES UP, REPORT

Springfield, Mo., October 8.—T. N. Bryan, 27, who said he had been convicted of manslaughter in Georgia and had escaped from the Georgia state prison farm more than a year ago, surrendered to Sheriff T. J. Harris today at the local county jail. He told the sheriff that he was a truant and had betrayed the confidence of officials in making his escape. He was serving a ten year sentence.

FLORIDA OYSTER KING UP FOR MAIL HEARING

Washington, October 8.—Hearings were begun today by the postoffice department in proceedings seeking to deny the use of the mails to William Lee Popham, self-styled oyster king of Apalachicola, Florida. The hearings will be closed to the public and may continue over a week.

The exact charges against Popham are not being revealed at the department under the law but he was cited to appear under section 3929 of the revised statutes, which authorize the postmaster general to prevent passage through the mails of matter by any person or company upon evidence satisfactory that such person or company is engaged in any device for obtaining money or property of any kind by means of false or fraudulent pretenses or promises.

Under the practice of the postoffice such citations or charges are not made public unless a fraud order is issued.

Popham appeared at the hearing accompanied by his counsel, Philip D. Beall, of Pensacola, and Eugene R. West and G. S. Brown, of Washington.

T. R. Hodges, fish commissioner of Florida, also is in Washington in connection with the case.

THIEVES GET $5,000 FROM LOBBY OF RITZ

New York, October 8.—Three armed men early today held up the night manager and several other employees of the fashionable Ritz-Carlton hotel and robbed a jewelry store, off the lobby, of $5,000 worth of gems.

The robbery occurred at 2:30 a. m. Charlie Chaplin, who entered the hotel lobby 15 minutes after the bandits fled, was the first outsider to learn of it. Not until five hours later, after hotel employees had tried to trail the robbers and failed, was the hold-up reported to the police.

Entering the hotel at the main concourse the bandits, well dressed and armed, called for the night manager and ordered his hands up. A porter, bellman and elevator operator were herded into an elevator cage and kept prisoners there by two of the invaders, while the third smashed the showcase of the adjoining gem shop and scooped out jewels.

When a special policeman appeared the bandits fled, leaving $45,000 worth of jewels in the smashed case. The bandit trio drove up to the entrance in a large automobile and snatched into the Ritz-Carlton, chatting intimately. They had all the appearance of bona fide guests until they whipped out pistols.

When Charlie Chaplin strolled in the imprisoned employees had just been released by the hotel's special officer, who became aware that something was amiss when, from an upper floor he heard the sound of crashing glass, but received no reply when he telephoned the desk to learn the cause.

Chaplin joined the officer and the night manager in following a trail of spilled jewels to the hotel door. They learned that the doorman, believing the bandits to be guests starting off on an early morning adventure, helped them through the revolving doors and into the automobile which drove up as they emerged.

ROB DIAMOND AGENT OF $80,000 IN GEMS

Chicago, October 8.—J. Schoren, of New York, a diamond salesman, reported to the police here today that he had been slugged and robbed of a satchel containing diamonds valued at $80,000.

AMERICAN DRUG STORE CLOSED BY SHERIFF

Americus, Ga., October 8.—(Special.)—Sheriff Lucius Harvey has just closed Lane's Pharmacy, the stock of goods and fixtures therein having been levied upon under a mortgage filed in favor of C. J. Clark as administrator of the late Carroll Clark. The place was formerly operated by Lane, who was killed by a train on the Georgia coast line, who moved from Myrtle Springs to Americus to take charge of the business. The failure, it is stated, is the first in the drug line to be recorded in Americus during a decade past.

We Offer a Test Tube Free

In Ten Days

The results will amaze you, if you fight the film on teeth

Millions of people have found new beauty, new protection, new delights, through this test we offer you. It is time you knew these benefits if you don't know them now. They are results you need and want. Let this test prove them to you.

Film and offense

Film on teeth is unseen. It mars beauty. At first that film is viscous. You can feel it now. With ordinary brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it discolors and forms dingy coats. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Few people escape these film-caused troubles unless they fight that film.

Dental science, after long research, has found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

the other removes it without harmful scouring. Many careful tests proved these methods effective. Then a new type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. In seven years it has brought to homes the world over a new dental era.

Also fruit effects.

Pepsodent also incorporates other principles. It contains the value of certain fruits in the diet. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. These are Nature's agents for combating acid and starch deposits. Pepsodent twice daily gives them manifold effect, just as eating fruit would. The people who constantly eat fruit are markedly immune to tooth decay.

Watch the changes

Quick changes come when Pepsodent is used. They will surprise and delight you. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear. Then you will realize how much this new method means to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

All Atlanta Gives High Praise to Big Orchestra

Photograph by Mathewson & Price, Staff Photographers.

Part of the big crowd gathered Sunday at the Howard theater to attend the first concert of the Atlanta Symphony orchestra.

Comment upon the concert given Sunday afternoon by Atlanta's new symphony orchestra was most enthusiastic. Each individual of the thousands who packed the Howard theater to hear this first offering by the latest civic asset, could not speak too highly in their praises of the performance throughout.

The only disappointment expressed was by some of the hundreds who, by reason of the limited seating capacity, were unable to gain admittance. It was conservatively estimated that, while 3,500 heard the concert, at least 1,500 were turned away. These were, of course, sadly disappointed and the glowing reports they later heard from those more fortunate but served to add to their chagrin.

Next Sunday, however, there will be another concert. Another opportunity to hear this really great orchestra, and it is to be hoped that many of the disappointed ones of last Sunday will be more fortunate on their second attempt.

Walter Rich, one of the leading supporters of Atlanta's annual season of Metropolitan Grand Opera, one of the most enthusiastic lovers of music in the city, was warm in his praise of Sunday's concert.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for the expansion and enrichment of the musical tendency in Atlanta. It is to be hoped that a large number of new subscribers will immediately come forward. Also that the proper provision may be made for that immense throng that was turned away from the Howard last Sunday."

"Such a program to miss! Von Weber's 'Oberon,' De Bussy's 'Arlesienne,' to say nothing of the beautiful 'Unfinished Symphony' by Schubert, and Wagner's 'Tannhauser Overture.' Such splendid orchestration and perfect interpretation of themes already partially successful. However, Atlanta must respond to the financial support of the enterprise."

Many additional hundreds of subscribers are needed to insure a complete success. Frankly, we think the sum of $10 for two seats for the entire series of twelve concerts a rather inadequate sum, disproportionate to the expense incurred in the mounting of such an enterprise.

"It is quite possible that the Howard theater, beautiful as it is, is much too small for the many thousands of people interested in these concerts. It is suggested that the Auditorium-Armory is therefore the logical place, where fully 5,000 people may attend. The founders and subscribers of the Atlanta Symphony orchestra have struck a responsive chord in the hearts of our people."

"The symphony orchestra is overdue. It is immensely welcome and already partially successful. However, Atlanta must respond to the financial support of the enterprise."

Arrangements for the second annual convention of the Georgia Retail Grocers' association, which will be held at the Ansley hotel Wednesday and Thursday, were completed at a committee meeting Monday night.

Indications point to a record attendance, according to the local committee. Two Pullman cars will bring delegates to the convention from Savannah, and will be joined in Macon by two other cars bringing delegates from other parts of the state and from other state associations are expected.

J. M. McLaughlin, of Jacksonville, president of the American Wholesale Grocers' association, will deliver an address, and Charles W. Myers, of Chicago, director of sales promotion of Armour and company, will speak on "The Business of Being a Grocer."

John A. Goode, of Nashville, president of the Tennessee Retail Grocers' Association and trustee of the National Association of Retail Grocers, J. R. Buchanan, of the Atlanta Milling company, and LeRoy Rogers, of the American Bakeries company, will also be present.

Ben A. Mayer, of the Sheldon School of Business Science of Chicago, will talk on "The Science of Retail Food Merchandising."

Two thousand dollars worth of season tickets were sold Monday for the artist series to be held in Wesley Memorial hall this fall and winter. At this rate the entire house will be filled by Saturday night when the season ticket sale closes.

Those desiring to hear either of the three great artists in this series—Furman, Kaufman and Kreisler—are advised to get seats for the season. It will cost only a trifle more than the single seat even if there is any left available, and then the artist tickets can be disposed of easily.

The season ticket rate for these three artists in Atlanta is much less than in other cities on account of the large seating capacity of Wesley hall. There are still plenty of desirable seats, which will go to those who call first at the Broadway piano store, where the sale will continue throughout the week.

JERRE CALDWELL, JR., DIES IN NASHVILLE

Jerre Caldwell, Jr., five-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Jerre Caldwell, of Nashville, died about 3 o'clock Monday morning at the home of his parents. He had been ill with pneumonia since Saturday.

Board to Assign Court to Place In Prison Today

The state prison commission will today decide whether Major Lee H. Court, sentenced to serve a life term in the penitentiary for killing A. B. McNeice, is to serve his sentence in the state prison farm at Milledgeville or on the Talbot county gang, in which county he was convicted.

Wide interest in this point has been manifested in Talbot county. The warden of the county came to Atlanta Monday in order to lay petitions from the county commission, from the trial jury and from many other substantial citizens, asking that Court be assigned to the county camp.

Flea Is Opposed.
Another delegation appeared in opposition and prospects of a lively hearing were evident. However, the members of the prison commission were not in the city Monday and the matter was left with Secretary Goodloe H. Yancey, for presentation to them Tuesday.

Secretary Yancey stated that, prior to final action of the supreme court on the Court appeal, he had been instructed, if the decision was unfavorable to the defendant, to assign him to the state farm and papers had been made out accordingly. Mr. Yancey, however, agreed to hold these in abeyance in order that the petitions might go before the commission.

In leaving his papers for the commission's consideration, Warden J. T. Goodroe, of Talbot county, accompanied them with the following affidavit, sworn before a notary:

WARDEN'S AFFIDAVIT.
Warden J. T. Goodroe of Talbot county, gentlemen—I appeared at your office this morning for the purpose of appearing before your honorable body, bearing with me a petition from the entire board of county commissioners of Talbot county, requesting that you place Major Lee H. Court in my charge as warden of Talbot county, for the purpose of serving sentence recently imposed upon him by the courts.

In addition to this, I brought with me a petition from eleven of the jurors, in which they state that if an application for absolute pardon for Major Court was circulated today, they would gladly sign it.

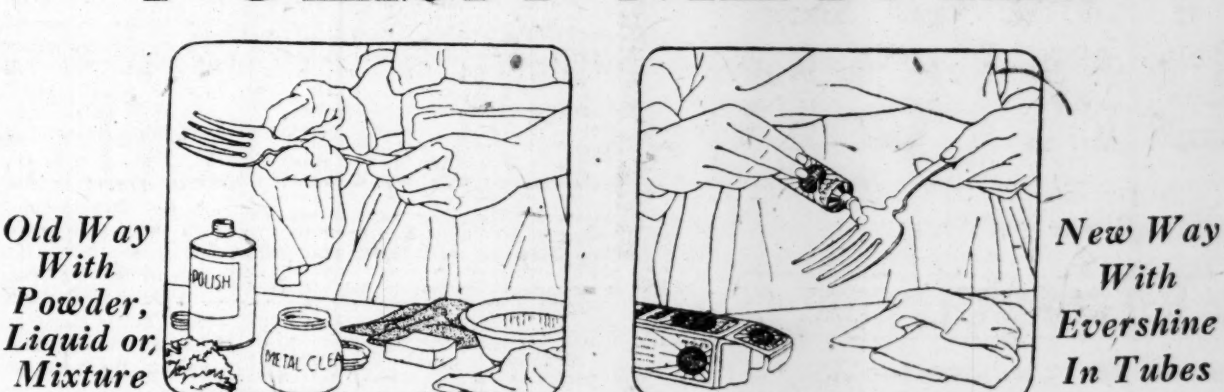

I also brought with me a letter from the county attorney and ordinary of Talbot county, requesting that before you make the assignment of Major Court, that you set a date for hearing before your honorable body so that the citizens and officials of Talbot county may be heard in the interest of placing Major Court in my charge as warden of the penitentiary system of Talbot county.

Filing Petitions.
As much as no member of the commission was present this morning, I am filing with you all of the petitions above enumerated and request that you give them your careful and conscientious consideration. If you will not assign Major Court after reading the bona fide documents herewith filed as set out above, I am, requested by the citizens and officials of Talbot county to serve his sentence.

WILSON EXCEEDED POWER, IS CLAIM

Wilmington, Del., October 8.—President Wilson exceeded his powers in giving Acting Secretary Polk authority to direct the sale of the seized enemy dye and chemical patents, Henry W. Anderson, special assistant to the attorney general, contended in opening argument today in the government's suit against the Chemical Foundation, Inc., for return of the patent. He insisted that Mr. Wilson alone was given the power by congress to offer a private sale of seized enemy property.

Elaborating the brief filed by the government two weeks ago, Mr. Anderson emphasized particularly the government's objection to the sale of the patents by officers of the government to themselves as officers of the Chemical Foundation. He renewed the charge that the dye industry, in seeking to control the patents and to exclude German competition, financed the selection of the patents that were to be seized. Anderson said the issue in this case is whether "the life of this nation shall be dominated by material things and material advantages or by the law and the ideals of right."

"The civilization of the United States is on trial," he said. "It is for the court to determine whether the supremacy of the law shall prevail or whether America shall follow its material interests or necessities so that its wrecks of civilization that have gone before. There is more here than the mere bones of law."

Charges that the sale of the patents was a result of a conspiracy were reiterated by Mr. Anderson. He referred to evidence in the trial to support his contention that the sale of the patents to the Chemical Foundation by the alien property custodian was the result of a conspiracy.

Jacobs Gets Right To Remove Remains Of Gen. Oglethorpe

Cranham, England, October 8.—Confirming the action of the rector and council of the church of All Saints here, Chancellor Ernest Childs today gave Dr. Thorndell Jacobs authority to excavate for the body of General James E. Oglethorpe, first governor of Georgia, who was buried in the middle of the chancel of the old church. Dr. Jacobs, who is president of Oglethorpe university, plans to have the bones of Georgia's founder removed to Atlanta for interment there in a special shrine to be erected on the campus of the university.

The work of excavation will be started tomorrow under the supervision of Dr. Leslie Wright, rector of the church, and Dr. Jacobs. While it is progressing a religious ceremony will be conducted. The disinterment will be made with "the utmost reverence," it is stated, and no reporters or photographers will be allowed in the church while it is progressing. If no obstacles are encountered it is expected the body will be found within two or three days. Further permission then will be required for its removal to America, but it is not anticipated that the authorities will stand in the way. Only two or three residents of Cranham filed objections to the excavation, and these were overruled as being without sufficient weight or legality.

Business Poor Is Bunk Report, Says Treasury

Washington, October 8.—Pessimistic reports concerning general business conditions are regarded as being unwarranted. A treasury spokesman declared today that rumors of increasing unemployment, pending curtailment of industrial programs among large firms and other moves of a like character should be disregarded, adding that he found no reason for belief that a break of any kind in business is near.

It was declared that most of the great corporations are employing their full number of workers and that, for the most part, orders are coming in sufficient quantity to give no reason for immediate cut in production. The statement was made, however, that the chaotic condition in Europe is having some effect on exporting firms but with a well maintained demand from other quarters, the European condition should not be accepted as an entirely governing factor. There is a strong import business under way, it was said, but the government has received vast returns in the form of tariff duties from the average business has not suffered appreciably.

FORD SEEKING RIGHT TO DAM MENOMINEE

Madison, Wis., October 8.—The Ford Hydro-Electric company applied to the Wisconsin railroad commission today for permission to construct and operate a dam in the Menominee river in Florence, Wis., for the development of electric power. Edsel B. Ford, president of the company, signed the application.

RUSSIA PROSPERING SAYS FINANCE CHIEF

Moscow, October 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Russia, which is devoting all her efforts to internal rehabilitation financially and economically, can only await events in Germany, but she surely will endeavor to prevent further European chaos which would interrupt further reconstruction, said Minister of Finance Sokolnikoff to the Associated Press.

"The Russian leaders are certain that events in Europe, particularly in Central Europe, are trending in such a direction that Russia, if she is permitted to continue reconstruction, will be relatively the strongest power within a few years. The coming fiscal year, Russia's budget of 1,800,000,000 gold rubles will be covered, 90 per cent by revenues and the balance of 10 per cent by the emission of unsecured paper rubles. The new bank note now in circulation and known as the Chernovets, is backed by gold of nearly four times the value of the unsecured paper, but the coming year we hope to maintain a ratio of only two-thirds of secured currency to one of paper. Meanwhile the country is going generally toward calculation on a gold basis. In addition to the state bank reserve, Russia for the first time since the revolution now is increasing the government treasury gold reserve through increasing receipts of platinum and gold from the mines.

"The government also plans, arbitrarily, if necessary, to increase the amount of 10 per cent in favor of exports over imports. Although some of the major industries suffered a loss last year and many smaller industries are here seeking to take them over, Russian certainly will not give easier terms for concessions this year than last year, though it is realized that we need and would welcome an influx of foreign capital."

Child To Follow His Own Desire On Quitting Time

Washington, October 8.—Retirement of Ambassador Child at Rome will be effective "at his pleasure" it was said officially today at the state department.

The ambassador is now en route to the United States on leave. If it proves to be his desire to return to Italy and sever his connection with the diplomatic service at a later date, it was indicated there would be no objection on the part of administration officials to such an arrangement.

It was emphasized that Mr. Child's retirement was at his own request and that announcement here of his purpose was not to be construed as a recall or as indicating any dissatisfaction with his work in Rome. In view of the domestic situation here as to when the ambassadors would determine to surrender his post, it was thought unlikely that the question of selection of his successor would be given more than passing consideration for the present. After he had conferred with President Coolidge and indicated when he wished to be relieved, it was said, there would be time enough to take up and decide the question of his successor.

To Ignore Wood And Suggestions, Says Coalition

Manila, October 8.—Encouraged by the coalition victory in the recent Philippine election, leaders of that party declared today the insular legislature would adopt a non-cooperation policy, refusing to pass measures recommended by Governor General Leonard Wood in his forthcoming message.

"The legislature, or at least the coalition majority, will disregard entirely all recommendations of Governor General Wood may make in his message to that body. Representative De la Rosa, a coalitionist, announced, "We will not pass any measure he recommends because he has disregarded the council of state and has not asked the advice of the department secretaries in preparing his message." Governor General Wood left Manila today for a tour of the northern provinces where he will investigate economic and other conditions. The legislature will convene October 16.

NATIVES MASSACRE FRENCH GARRISON

Dakar, French West Africa, October 8.—The massacre of the garrison of a French post 60 miles north of Timbuctoo was revealed today. Armed natives, with an estimated strength of 300 rifles, surrounded the camp on September 29, during the absence of its commander, officer, who was away reconnoitering, and after a seven-hour siege exterminated the garrison, consisting of sixty Senegalese soldiers and one native non-commissioned officer.

The French governor general of West Africa is organizing an expedition to proceed against the rebels.

JAP COP ON TRIAL IN STRANGLING CASE

Tokio, October 8.—The military trial of Captain Masahiko Amakasu, gendarmier officer, charged with killing Sakaye Otsugi, socialist leader, and his wife and child on September 10, opened here today. The Amakasu case has attracted wide attention. Amakasu admits he killed the Otsugi family. He strangled them after he had arrested them and brought them to a gendarmier station. The officer said he killed the Otsugi because the socialists' principles and his actions were detrimental to the peace of society during such chaotic times as followed the earthquake.

ELECTRICS COLLIDE AND SCORE ARE HURT

Chicago, October 8.—More than a score of persons were injured, some of them seriously, in a rear-end collision of two Aurora, Ill. and Chicago electric railway trains shortly before 9 a. m. today at Wolf road, a mile west of Bellwood, Ill. The forward train of three cars was automatically stopped when an air hose burst and caused the application of the brakes, and the following train crashed into it. The rear car of the first train was rammed and telescoped by the motor car of the second train, an express from Wheaton to Chicago.

JAPANESE STEAMER SENDS S. O. S. CALL

Norfolk, Va., October 8.—The coast guard cutter Manning today was sent to the aid of the Japanese steamship Karachi Maru, in distress 300 miles east of Cape Henry. SOS calls came today from the Karachi Maru, which was reported in distress Saturday.

Since the first report that the ship was in trouble, advices were sent by radio to the Egypt Maru, the Raikun Maru and the Tokufuku Maru, believed to be in the vicinity of the disabled vessel, to go to her assistance. It was believed that one or more of the other Japanese ships might pick up the Karachi Maru before help sent by the coast guard could reach her, until the SOS came this morning. The Manning sailed at 10:30 a. m. The cutter Modoc, out of Wilmington, N. C., has picked up the waterlogged schooner Melbourne P. Smith, of New York, which was dismasted in the hurricane of last week, and is towing her into Charleston, S. C., the nearest port. The crew of the Smith was taken off by the steamer Dean Ewing. It is reported the Smith is owned by the East Coast Transportation Company of New York.

BROWN COUSINS AIR DIFFERENCES

Clark county in the state assembly. He was also senator from his district for two years. His testimony was to the effect that inspection of oil in Clark county had been lax, in that at one time the inspector had allowed the Standard Oil company to draw samples of oil from its tanks and merely send them to the inspector to be inspected. He admitted that this practice had been stopped.

Giving rebuttal testimony to this charge, Commissioner Brown swore that the inspector guilty of this laxity was appointed by his predecessor, Commissioner Price, and that as soon as he was granted the legal right to appoint or discharge inspectors, he put up a new man.

THREAT TO DASH HOPES OF FRANCE

General De Goutte, French Ruhr commander.

It declares that the Stinnes group, representing the Rhinish and Westphalian mining organization, had previously attempted to confer with Stresemann before going to the French general, but that Stresemann was busy handling the cabinet crisis. A report on the Ruhr talks has been sent to Stresemann, however, the paper declares.

The visit to De Goutte, coupled with reports that Stinnes is still trying to oust Stresemann, is believed to be part of Stinnes' program that the big business interests ignore the government and settle economic problems independently.

Industrialists are already instituting overtime in the manufacturing centers, regardless of the government's eight-hour law, and this fact in itself may bring a new crisis.

REICHSRAT FAVORS STRESEMANN AS DICTATOR

Berlin, October 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—The reichsrat today adopted the draft bill of the authorization law asked by Chancellor Stresemann, by virtue of which he would receive sweeping authority in dictating economic measures. Bavaria and some of the Prussian provinces voted against the bill.

(The reichsrat is the imperial council formed of representatives of the component states in the German republic.)

RUHR NEGOTIATIONS MAKING PROGRESS

Paris, October 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Negotiations between representatives of German industrial groups and the Franco-Belgian authorities of occupation, looking toward complete resumption of work in the Ruhr and deliveries in kind on reparations account, are in a fair way to succeed, it was said at the French foreign office today.

Three groups have been represented thus far in the conversations at Dusseldorf—the Stinnes-Glockheim, the Otto Wolf-Kapp and the von Vilsen group. The results of these conferences when they reach a stage promising the actual resumption of reparations deliveries will necessarily be referred first to the allied governments engaged in the Ruhr occupation and then to the British government and to the reparations commission.

Regarding the recent speech of Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, before the imperial conference, in which he said Great Britain was awaiting the next French move, it was declared that France had no proposals to make to Great Britain. The proposals, it was declared, must come from Germany. When they do come they will be submitted to the British government as a matter of courtesy in any event, and as a matter of right in case they involve other phases of the reparations problem than the occupation of the Ruhr, in which Great Britain is not interested.

SEPARATISTS PLAN FOR EARLY COUP

Paris, October 8.—The separatists intend to attempt the establishment of a Rhineland republic at an early date, says a Mayence dispatch to Le Journal.

The republic will be proclaimed simultaneously in all the principal cities of the left bank of the Rhine and in the Ruhr, the correspondent says. He adds that the separatists are planning to have their plans carried out and taken elaborate precautions to avoid bloodshed.

REDS TO OPPOSE KAHN OF VON KAHN

London, October 8.—Dr. Von Kahn's so-called reactionary rule in Bavaria has led to counter measures in Thuringia and Saxony whereby communists will enter the cabinets of those German states, says Reuters' Berlin correspondent.

Conversations have been in progress between the Saxony and Thuringian premiers with regard to the formation of an alliance of all the central states of Germany against the growth of fascism in Bavaria and it is stated that these negotiations have led to the recognition of the need for the creation of a "red bloc."

The communists will be seeking participation in the Saxon government in the beginning of a determined defensive fight against the reaction.

As a result of these developments Chancellor Stresemann has asked Premier Zeigner of Saxony and Friedrich of Thuringia to come to Berlin for a conference.

CROP PLUNDERING ON INCREASE

Berne, Switzerland, October 8.—A rapid increase in the number of cases of crop plundering by bands of workers and townfolk is reported from Germany. Some of the gangs have even passed the Swiss frontier, helping themselves in potato fields near Basel until driven back by the police. Similar acts are reported from Silesia and Saxony where bands of 800 to 1,000 persons swarmed over the potato plantings. Some 600 of these plunderers were arrested at Jauer and transferred to barracks.

Active Politically.

The commissioner admitted on the stand, as charged by "Cousin Lundy," that his department had been active politically in Clark county, saying that he had thought it for the interests not only of the department, but of the state as well, that L. C. Brown be defeated in his campaign for reelection. He based this belief, he said, on the fact that L. C. Brown had brought serious charges against his department on the floor of the house in 1919 and had then refused to produce evidence in substantiation of those charges before an earlier legislative investigation.

It was during cross-examination of L. C. Brown that the cousinship was developed. Mr. Olive asked how far apart had been the boyhood homes of the two Browns and drew out that they were not very far distant. He also showed that the cousins had been good friends, had gone hunting together several times and had consulted together in Atlanta over appointments on different occasions.

"In fact," asked Mr. Olive, "isn't it true that you did not make these charges against Cousin John until after you had a falling out with him because he failed to appoint a man you endorsed for the oil inspectorship in Clark county?"

L. C. Brown admitted that the matter of this appointment had come up before the charges were made. "Later," L. C. Brown requested the stand and began to testify as to certain warrants which, he said, had been shown him by Walter Vance, former w. rant clerk under Governor Hardwick. Chairman George Lankford, however, ruled all this testimony out unless the warrants in question are produced Tuesday and Vance, himself, put upon the stand to testify as to them.

Mr. Brown was the only witness to testify on Monday. Grover C. Edmondson, former business manager of The Columbia Sentinel, who had been expected, notified the committee that he had turned over all documentary evidence in his possession to Representative Charles E. Stewart, of Atkinson county, and that he saw no reason why he should testify.

Representative Stewart wired that important business prevented him from attending the hearings this week but that he might be ready next week.

Chairman Lankford announced Monday afternoon that all witnesses subpoenaed had been notified and, if they did not appear by Tuesday, he would advocate the committee concluding the hearing of testimony immediately and going into the work of drawing up its report.

A sub-committee, composed of Dykes, Guess, Reeves, Bennett and Parker was named to investigate books and records of the department.

a resolution attacking the Federated Press, which was pending when the Dunne action was presented. Before the convention could vote on the Dunne resolution, it adjourned for the noon recess.

The executive council's report denouncing "usurpation of government" by the Ku Klux Klan was unanimously approved in a resolution adopted. It called upon trades unionists to beware of the organization as a "menace to American government." A copy of the report on the Ku Klux Klan was ordered sent to each local organization in the federation.

The convention adopted a resolution denouncing the "usurpation of government" by the Ku Klux Klan. The vote on the resolution unseating Dunne brought to issue the conservative and radical elements of the convention. It was taken after several hours of discussion in which Dunne was denounced by Matthew Wolf, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, William Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. Dunne himself replied to the attacks and hurled defiance at the convention.

EXPECT 30 AGENCIES IN COMMUNITY CHEST

All social welfare agencies in Atlanta that have not yet affiliated with the Community Chest, but which have been planning to do so, are requested to complete arrangements at once, according to a statement issued at the Community Chest headquarters Monday afternoon.

This statement followed the return to Atlanta of P. S. Arkwright, chairman of the budget and participation committee, which will begin immediately a careful survey of the 25 budgets already submitted.

It was also stated by Roy P. Gates on Monday that the final enrollment of Associated Charities will exceed 30 and that there will not be more than two or three social service agencies, which will elect to take their chances alone in 1924.

Mr. Arkwright, who had been out of the city for about three weeks, was impressed by the growth of the Community Chest since he saw it last. "The enthusiasm that I find on all sides, among all with whom I talk, makes me realize that Atlanta has made tremendous strides toward the success we anticipate," said he.

Space in the Southeastern fair, engaged for the purpose of the chest, will be occupied Tuesday with workers and literature for the information of all who are interested.

W. W. Orr, chairman of the industrial subscriptions committee, returned to the city Monday and entered at once upon preparations for his division of the work, which will take in every local enterprise employing as many as 30 people.

A Reproduction of Paul Revere's Tea Set

In the Boston Museum of Fine Arts is exhibited one of the original solid silver services made by Paul Revere—famous as a silversmith and for his Midnight Ride.

In our north window we are showing an interesting display of Colonial Period Solid Silver, in which is an exact reproduction of the genuine Paul Revere service. This service consists of a five-piece Tea Set, Kettle, Pitcher, Bowl, Dessert, Sugar and Cream, Salt and Pepper, a Tea Ball—a replica of the old-fashioned square lantern. In addition to this, there are Waiters, Goblets, etc., to match.

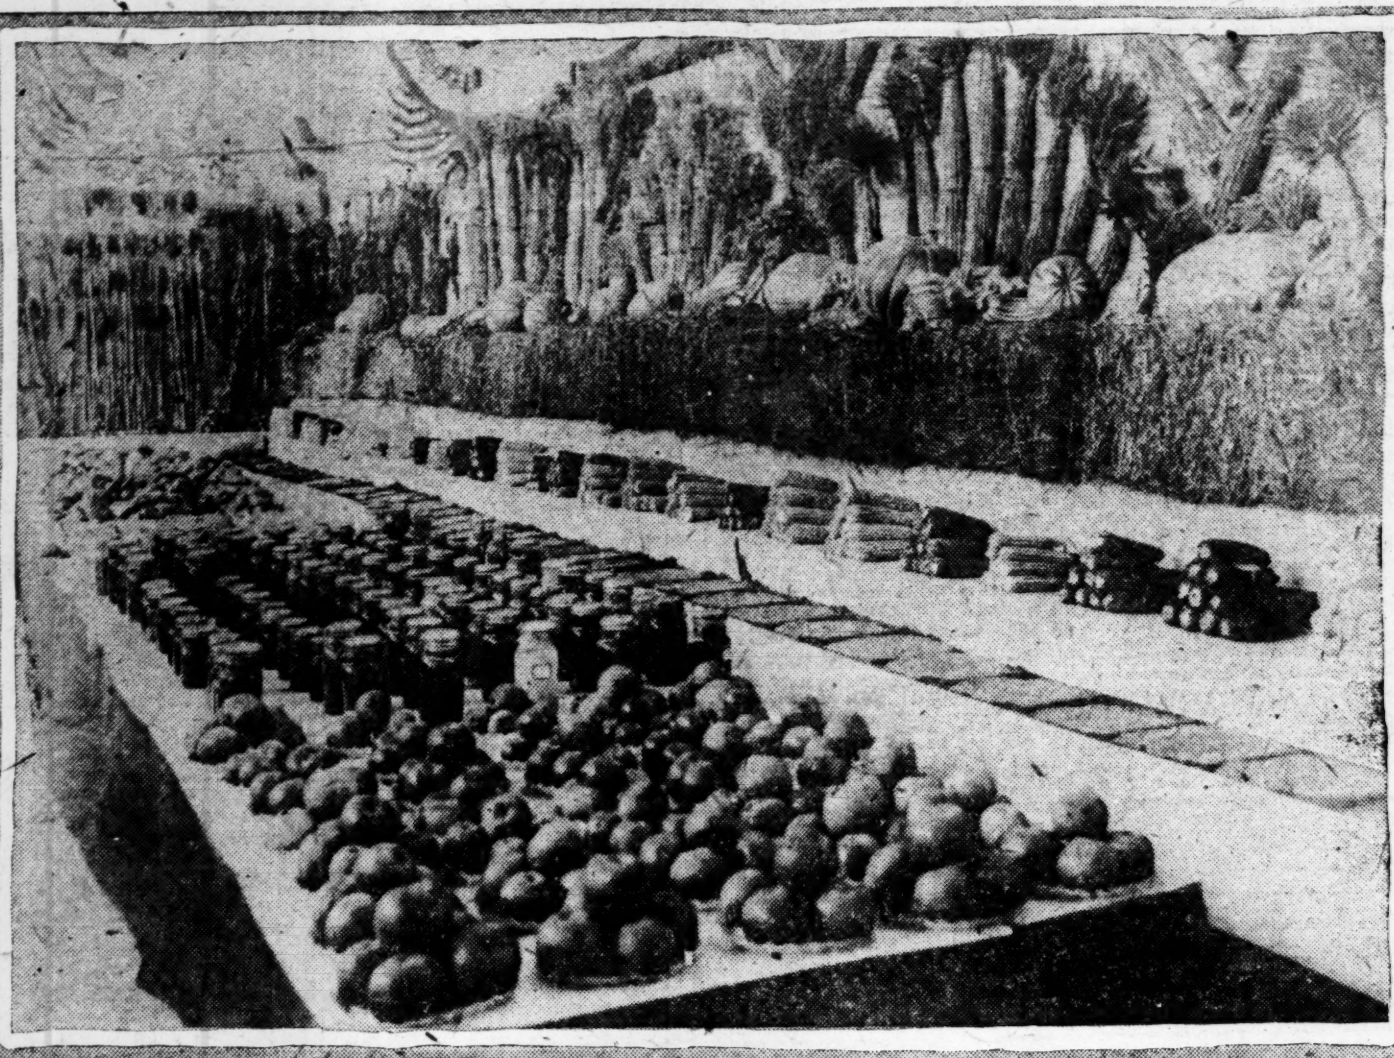

You will doubtless enjoy seeing this display, not only for its historical associations, but for its rare beauty.

Interesting Exhibits at Southeastern Fair

Upper picture shows the magnificent outlay of farm products exhibited by Heywood county, North Carolina. It includes peas, beans, corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, alfalfa, peanuts and other agricultural products, and a complete outlay of canned fruits and vegetables. It is one of the most attractive exhibits on the Southeastern fair grounds. The picture at the bottom shows Miss Myrtle Maylis, 286 Waldo street, inspecting a huge cow made of butter and displayed by the Columbus creamery. This interesting exhibit attracts the admiration of hundreds.

rama of Atlanta taken during the war between the states.

The memories of pioneer residents and of Confederate veterans who participated in the battle of Atlanta have been drawn upon for battle incidents of those thrilling days in order that the display tonight may be as true to history as possible.

Fireworks Display.
The fireworks display of Saturday and of Monday nights drew many gasps of pleased amazement from their spectators but Tuesday night's display will be the most magnificent of them all.

Other events of the day will be the Kiwanis parade in which 45 clubs of Georgia and other southeastern states will be represented, headed by Al C. Fields minstrel show band and entertainers. It is Kiwanis day. Live stock and poultry judging also begins.

Live stock judging teams representing state agricultural colleges of North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia will begin their competition while the official judges are at work awarding prizes in the many groups.

Six hundred of the finest swine in the southeast will compete for honors. The Nantahala farm, of Atlanta; C. O. Hawkins of Americus; John R. Moore, of Wrightsville; W. S. Keadrick, of Waynesboro; C. J. Hardman, of Commerce; J. T. Anderson, of Marietta; J. A. Franklin, of Midville; six herds from Ohio, two from Tennessee, ten from Maryland, one from Illinois and one from Virginia will compete. Judging the Durocs begins at 10 o'clock this morning and Poland Chinas at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Other classes will be reached as quickly as possible.

The Kiwanians will have luncheon at the fair grounds at which Arthur L. Brooke will preside; Milton Jarnigan, of the State College of Agriculture at Athens will speak; Billie Church and Jack Edwards, Field's minstrel comedians, will entertain.

County Farm Exhibits.

Winning agricultural exhibits, announced by the judges Monday night, are as follows:

First prize: Spaulding county, Ga., $500; second prize: Heywood county, N. C., $400; third prize: Montgomery county, Ala., $300; fourth prize: Baldwin county, Ala., $300; fifth prize: Cullman county, Ala., $200; sixth prize: Fulton county, Ga., $200; seventh prize, Lincoln county, Ga., $200; eighth prize, Lincoln county, Ga., $200; ninth prize, Barrow county, Ga., $100.

Individual Exhibits.

The individual prize winners for farm exhibits are: First prize, B. L. Patrick, of Griffin; second prize, Mrs. C. A. Parsons; third prize, W. P. Jones; fourth prize, E. J. Howell; fifth prize, Mrs. M. M. Oakes; sixth prize, P. E. Reed; seventh prize, W. C. Naffel; eighth prize, J. B. Broadwell; ninth prize, Miss Gertrude Proctor; tenth prize, C. C. Cruchfield.

Livestock Program.

The livestock judging program was announced Monday night.

Judging of Jersey dairy herds and Hereford beef herds will begin at 9 o'clock Tuesday in separate rings.

Judging of Guernsey dairy herds and short-horn beef herds will begin at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in separate rings.

Judging of Ayrshire dairy herds will begin Wednesday afternoon.

Judging of sheep will begin also Wednesday afternoon and probably will require two days to complete. Great advancement in the sheep-growing industry in Georgia is apparent in the sheep exhibits, fair officials stated. More sheep and goats are displayed than ever before.

Judging of Aberdeen-Angus beef herds and Holstein dairy herds will begin at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

William White, Jr., has three car loads of fat cattle entered.

The grand stock parade of all stock prize winners is to be held Friday afternoon after the horse races on the race track in front of the grand stand.

Guests at Banquet.

Exhibitors of all classes of livestock will be guests at a banquet at the dining tent of the fair school boys as they feast of the executive committee of the fair association at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Milton P. Jarnigan is to be the speaker.

The fair school under Prof. C. V. Cunningham's direction has enrolled 275 boys, representing each of the 100 Georgia counties, who are attending the fair at the expense of the association.

Livestock, cattle, sheep and swine

Lyon as superintendent; Georgia corn show under W. G. Cooper as chairman and J. Phil Campbell, state college of agriculture, director; Boys' corn contest under Dr. William Bradford as superintendent; Boys' pig club under Jule G. Liddell as superintendent; Canning club under Miss Lois Dowdle, state girls' club agent; woman's work and woman's exhibits under Mrs. W. P. Anderson as chairman and Miss Annie Maude Mitchell as superintendent.

Highlanders to Play.

Free entertainment is provided each day by the Royal Scotch Highlanders band and a series of hippodrome acts by acrobats, equilibristas, equestrians and other performers.

the day, of the Sloan Paper company at luncheon and of the chamber of commerce at a banquet, at night, Hal M. Stanley, secretary of press association, is chairman of arrangements.

An event of Friday will be the unveiling of the memorial tablet to George T. Betts, founder and late president of the Georgia association and advocate of the "hog, cow and hen" balanced farming program in Georgia. The directors and officers of the Georgia association will attend and prominent Georgians will speak in tribute to Mr. Betts.

Johnny Jones Shows.

The midway will be open each day and night this week.

LEG AMPUTATION MAY RESULT FROM TRAIN ACCIDENT

Birmingham doctors Monday night were working to save the leg of W. O. Gray, of 400 Neely street, East Point, from amputation as the result of an accident Sunday night at Barnes, Ala., when he was thrown from the steps of a caboose through a trestle to the ground 40 feet below.

Witnesses said that the victim was standing on the steps of the car when the train was jerked, causing him to lose his balance. The accident, which occurred on the Southern railroad, broke his leg, and he suffered cuts and bruises about the face and head.

Why take the risk?

MANY have found by their own experience that coffee's effect is harmful. Health authorities warn against risking the growth and development of children with the drug element in coffee.

Why take chances with your health, and thus risk comfort, happiness—success?

There's both safety and satisfaction in Postum as your mealtime drink. You'll thoroughly enjoy its delightful flavor and aroma. Postum contains nothing that can harm you. As many cups as you like, at any meal—with no penalties to pay in wakeful nights and daytime dullness.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

LAST MINUTE RUSH TO PAY TAXES OPEN

With less than half of the city's $4,500,000 anticipated tax revenue collected up to Monday, the beginning of the last week before the tax books close and legal penalties are made effective, long lines of people began to form before the tax office window and city hall officials expressed belief that the greatest tax-paying stampede in the city's history was beginning.

GROCERY STORE SAFE IS FOUND; ARRESTS EXPECTED

The 1,200-pound safe which was taken Sunday night from the store of Echols & Lyle Grocery company of 9 Cleburne avenue, was found late Monday afternoon in an lot opposite 237 East avenue by J. T. Wheeler. The safe had been blown open and $800 had been taken from it.

Officers said Monday night that arrests were expected momentarily.

BOOKS ARE READY AT STATE LIBRARY ON TAX SUBJECTS

A collection of tax material has been assembled in the legislative reference department of the state library for the use of the special tax commission and advisory group, the legislature.

A few of the items are: Beman's "Current Problems in Taxation," Pollock's "Readings in Public Finance," Kenan's "Income Tax," "National Tax Association Proceedings and Bulletin," Sears' "Minimizing Taxes," Seligman's "Income Tax" and special tax commissions' reports of the several states.

Mrs. Hall Gains Over 20 Lbs. Taking Tanlac

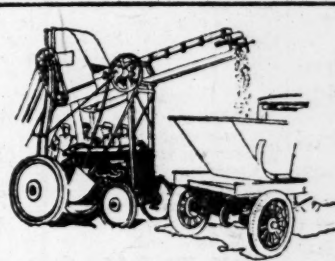

"The biggest and pleasantest surprise of my life was the change that came over me when I started taking Tanlac and gained between twenty and thirty pounds," said Mrs. Dossie Hall, 1127 Fenwick St., Augusta, Ga. "For nearly a year I suffered so from indigestion I couldn't eat a meal without having pains in my stomach. I had awful smothering spells and thought my heart was affected. I lost weight, and was so nervous I could not sleep and was so weak I knew I could not hold out much longer unless I got some relief. "A week or two after I started on Tanlac, the pains, smothering sensations and shortness of breath were gone and I had a fine appetite. I could eat anything without any bad effects. Now my health has been completely restored and I am as well and strong as ever. Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world." Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Fordson Operating Loader

Fordson Used As Locomotive

Ford 1-Ton Truck With Air Compressor

A manufacturer recently replaced a $4,000 hauling equipment in his plant with Fordsons and trailers. The Fordson equipment cost $1,300 and the work is done just as well.

Before you buy high priced equipment for your plant or continue to operate it if you have such equipment already, why not find out if a Fordson will fit your business and save you money?

Demonstrations are in action every day showing the many different uses the Fordson has been adapted to. If a Fordson will fit your business you want to know it.

Road work, excavating, hoist operation, heavy hauling and service as a locomotive are but a few of the interesting operations you will see.

At the agricultural exhibit the latest farm tools designed to go with the Fordson to make farming more profitable are shown.

Something doing every minute. See if you can use a Fordson. It may save you money.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmosa Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, contain no dieting, exercise, or absurd greases and salves, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmosa Co., 4012 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. ## WALLACE FIGURES IN STOKES DIVORCE

New York, October 8.—The second trial of the divorce suit of W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel proprietor, against Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes began today before Supreme Court Justice Mahoney.

A dozen feet from Mr. Stokes, who was dressed in black and in vivid contrast to the somberness of his garb, sat his wife, modestly dressed in a blue traveling gown.

The court room was crowded to capacity with witnesses and spectators, many of the latter stylishly dressed women. A jury was selected shortly after court opened.

Attorneys for both sides agreed not to bring into question the legitimacy of the two Stokes children.

Counsel for Mrs. Stokes said the case would be based on a single instance of misconduct.

E. T. Wallace Named.
The attorney named Edgar T. Wallace, whom he described as "a man of leisure connected with the Interborough Transit company" and a member of a group of Interborough officials who maintained "a rendezvous—an apartment—for parties."

Wallace figured as the chief co-respondent in the first trial of the Stokes divorce suit several years ago when he testified against Mrs. Stokes.

Counsel for Mrs. Stokes announced he would object to trying the issue on only one allegation of misconduct. He told the jury that in previous trials Stokes had "made 49 charges against Mrs. Stokes involving sixteen men, including her 10-year-old stepson, a cousin and other relatives," and that he was prepared to prove all those charges false.

Wallace had known Mrs. Stokes since 1904, said Max Steuer, counsel for the plaintiff, in his opening address to the jury.

He said Mrs. Stokes, who frequented the "rendezvous" of the Interborough officials, and that Wallace finally set up an establishment of his own after having quarreled over a "certain female."

Steuer said he would prove that Mrs. Stokes visited Wallace's establishment on 34th street and that the "rendezvous" was present. If it were proved that Mrs. Stokes visited Wallace, the jury would be duty bound to find her guilty of the charges cited by her husband, said Steuer.

Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the defendant, promised some "startling facts" would be disclosed by witnesses he had subpoenaed.

He sketched the early life of Mrs. Stokes up to the time she came to New York city, "a refined, educated, cultured woman," to become a guest at the Ansonia hotel, which Stokes owned and managed.

"He was 58 and looked 40," said Untermeyer. "He was 25 years older than she. But she became infatuated with him, loved and married him."

Mrs. Alice S. Mills, of Kansas City, Mo., the first witness, testified she had known Edgar T. Wallace all her life and that she had seen Mrs. Stokes in Princeton, Mo., in 1904 in his company. She said Mrs. Stokes was known there as Helen Elwood.

On cross-examination it was brought out that Mrs. Mills had come to New York at the solicitation of Mr. Stokes' secretary.

PASTOR IN MACON AND ALL OFFICERS RESIGN POSITIONS

Macon, Ga., October 8.—(Special.) Every officer of the Chesapeake Baptist church, Macon, and the pastor, Rev. W. H. Sledge, have resigned and the church will undergo a reorganization with a view to eliminating friction that is said to have existed for some time.

Wednesday night the 340 members of the congregation will assemble at the church and proceed to elect a pastor and members of the board of deacons.

Dr. Sledge, during the period of his pastorate, has increased the membership from 54 to 340 members. It is expected he will be reelected to the pastorate.

GRACE HOWELL IS REMANDED TO JAIL

Miami, Fla., October 8.—Grace Violet Howell, awaiting her fifth trial for the murder of her husband, Thomas S. Howell, in this city in February, 1918, was remanded to jail at West Palm Beach by Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson on the ground that she had not been properly remanded here from Palm Beach county.

After the first trial of the case in Dade county, she had secured a change of venue on the ground that H. P. Branning, then judge, was prejudiced against her. Branning was found at Miami Beach Saturday disguised as an old woman and trying to rent quarters for a beauty parlor. She had escaped from the Dade county jail months ago and according to a letter to a local newspaper had gone to Roanoke, Va.

PEANUT CROP IN CLAY NOW MOVING RAPIDLY

Fort Gaines, Ga., October 8.—(Special.)—Peanuts are moving rapidly in Clay county. McKee Brothers, who are receivers for the Georgia Peanut Growers' Cooperative association, are kept busy grading and storing peanuts. The market has been very strong, the price as high as $150 per ton last Thursday.

Banks of the county have been favorable to the organization from the beginning and the bank in the county has handled some of the association's receipts for their customers, allowing them to draw $75 per ton, which the association is lending members.

It was predicted here by some that if peanuts opened up this fall there would be a tendency on the part of some of the members to override or evade their contract but such has not been the case here.

Peanut pickers report very light yields, ranging from 5 to 20 bushels per acre.

HANCOCK OFFICERS SEIZE TWO STILL

Sparta, Ga., October 8.—(Special.) Sheriff James M. Jackson and Deputy Sheriff R. D. Smith are waging an intensive campaign against illicit distillers. Last week they raided a house in the county and seized fifty gallons of scuppernon brandy. This was confiscated, but no arrests were made, as the owners made their escape. Saturday night a still near the Oconee river, near the Putnam and Baldwin county line, was raided. Two negroes were arrested and brought to Sparta. The still was confiscated.

Many Gas Consumers Give Rebate to Big Memorial

Have you assigned your gas rebate to the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial?

Now that the United States supreme court has decided to reopen the Atlanta gas rate case, which decision, rendered late Monday, gives consumers a claim for a rebate, Chairman Albert S. Adams of the citizens committee in charge of raising Atlanta's quota of the memorial fund last night issued an appeal for an early response from every consumer who is willing to contribute their rebates to this great undertaking.

"We have already received assignments from hundreds of gas consumers, and are getting an increasing number in every mail delivery," said Chairman Adams. "It seems reasonably evident that the people are glad of the opportunity to make this small contribution to this great enterprise which means so much for Atlanta, for Georgia and the south."

"The amount of the gas rebate is small in each instance, probably not more than a few dollars for the average family, but if every family steps up their rebate to the memorial it will make a substantial sum towards raising the Atlanta quota."

"We are anxious to get all assignments made before our campaign committee of 250 workers starts the drive for Atlanta's quota next Monday. We want to know how much we can count on from gas rebates."

"Whatever the gas rebate amounts to, that amount will be credited on the gas consumer's subscription to the memorial, if he or she wishes to make a subscription. For example, if a person wants to subscribe $100 to the memorial, and has assigned a gas rebate amounting to $7.50, that will be credited as a cash payment on the subscription.

"But the best thing about this plan is that it affords an opportunity for every Atlanta home, or practically everyone, to make a contribution to the greatest enterprise in Atlanta's history. It's success depends upon the number who respond. If there is a general response, as I believe there will be, we will have a substantial start on the Atlanta quota when we start the campaign next Monday."

Gas Consumers Will Be Paid 10 Cent Rebate

A rebate of 10 cents in each 1,000 feet of gas paid the Georgia Railway and Power company since January 1, 1922, will be made consumers following telegraphic advice from Washington to the effect that the United States supreme court had rendered a decision, denying the company's petition for a rehearing in the rate case, officials announced Monday.

The power company will begin immediately preparing details to rebate its customers, the work requiring a number of weeks. The amount to be refunded is estimated at $200,000 although it was stated that a more definite check might reveal this figure to be $250,000.

It is the intention of the company to begin work immediately of readjusting prepaid meters so as to meet the new rate of $1.55 per 1,000 feet which was upheld by the supreme court. This rate was approved in 1921 to become effective January 1, 1922, but this action was stayed by a restraining order instituted in behalf of the Atlanta Gas Light company and the Georgia Railway and Power company.

The company posted a guarantee bond of $100,000 to insure refund to customers in the event the lower rate was upheld, and kept the former rate in effect while the case was fought through the United States district court and later the United States supreme court.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO REOPEN RATE CASE

Washington, October 8.—The supreme court today refused to reopen the rate case brought by the Georgia Railway and Power company, and the Atlanta Gas Light company, against the railroad commission of Georgia.

The motion for a rehearing made by the companies was based on the ground that the decision was not in harmony with the court's views on rate-making as expressed in its opinions in the Southwestern Bell Telephone and the Bluefield Water Works and Improvement company cases. The companies contended that it was the established rule of the court that the value of a property at the time a rate is made should be recognized as the value upon which the rate should be based in calculating whether the earnings were reasonable or confiscatory.

The court had, the companies insisted, refused to apply that rule in its case.

HARVEY IS PRAISED BY LONDON PAPER

London, October 8.—Commenting on the retirement of Ambassador Harvey The Daily Telegraph says today: "The English people clearly regard it as a national right of the American ambassador to be a man of high ability and distinction."

After enumerating some of the most famous men who have held the post the newspaper adds that "Colonel Harvey by the consent of everybody has proved himself one of the most efficient of that brilliant company."

Describing the ambassador as a realist without sentiment, the newspaper says: "The realist has proved a most successful diplomatist. The spirit of co-operation between the two English-speaking people owes much to him. Such friends are rare."

Elgin establishes still higher authority in Professional Timekeeping for the Railroad Man

The New "B. W. Raymond"
—21 Jewel—Railroad Model

It was back in 1867 that the first "B. W. Raymond" Watch was produced by the Elgin watchmakers.

Railroading was in its infancy. Railroads were short. Life was leisurely.

But even then the railroad man felt the need of precise timekeeping—and the Elgin "Raymond" took its place as the professional timekeeper of the railroad man.

Time and developments have only served to emphasize the unique position of the Elgin "Raymond."

There are more "Raymonds" today on the American railroads than any one model of any other make of watch.

If the Elgin people approached watchmaking simply as manufacturers, the new "B. W. Raymond"—21 Jewel—Railroad Model would never have seen the light.

Important refinements in watchmaking have taken shape in the Elgin laboratories.

You will find them all in the new "B. W. Raymond"—21 Jewel—Railroad Model.

Ask your jeweler to show you this new Elgin professional timekeeper for the railroad man.

If he hasn't it now, he can get it for you within thirty days.

Winslow-Flake Wedding Party Guests at Buffet Supper

Miss Beatrice Winslow and Hugh Wallace Flake, whose marriage will be a social event of Tuesday evening in Decatur, were honored with a buffet supper Monday evening following the rehearsal given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Winslow at their home on Church street.

The house was beautifully decorated throughout with early fall flowers, asters, cosmos and dahlias placed in effective arrangement on mantels and cabinets.

The table in the dining room was adorned in the center with a basket of pink dahlias and buddleia, while silver candlesticks with white tapers and tied with bows of green tulle were placed at intervals.

Miss Winslow's beautiful gown was of coral chiffon, girdled with silver and trimmed with wreaths of French flowers. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids showered with swanons.

Mrs. Winslow received her guests wearing a gown of blue crepe.

The guests included the bridal party and out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivers Compliment Johnson-Atkins Wedding Party

One of the loveliest of many brilliant social events given in honor of Miss Jennie Johnson and Dr. Frank Miller Atkins, whose wedding will take place Tuesday evening was the dinner-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers were hosts Monday evening at the Piedmont Driving club following the rehearsal at the St. Mark's Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivers received their guests in the Louis XVI room of the club.

Dinner was served in the gray room. The bridal party was seated at a large central table surrounded by four smaller tables where the remaining guests were served. A charming color combination of Dresden shades was used throughout the decorations and menu. A large silver basket of feathery chrysanthemums, asters and cosmos in the Dresden colors graced the center of the large table and surrounding it were six smaller baskets alternating with silver candlesticks holding pink tapers. The other tables held similar decorations.

Small pink baskets held mints and bonbons embossed in Dresden flowers. The cakes were richly embossed and the ice was in the shape of white wedding slippers.

After dinner the guests were entertained at dancing.

Mrs. Rivers received her guests wearing a handsome gown of black lace with trimmings of jet.

Miss Johnson was a charming figure in yellow chiffon embroidered in pink roses.

Mrs. C. H. Johnson, mother of the bride-elect, wore a dinner gown of black lace.

The guests included Miss Johnson, Dr. Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Johnson, Misses Margaret Morgan, Margaret Nelson, Susan Orme, Jennie Robinson, Louise Innes, Emmie Nixon, Olive Caldwell, of New York; Miss Killbrey and Miss Emmie Lou Wheeler, of Nashville; Mrs. W. ### Wedding Party Is Entertained At Standard Club

Miss Dora Goettinger and Jacob Hecht Rothschild, of Columbus, Ga., whose marriage will be a beautiful social event of today were guests of honor at a dinner party given by Miss Goettinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Goettinger, at the Standard club.

The dinner followed the rehearsal with covers laid for the members of the bridal party and the immediate families of the honor guests.

The central decoration was a huge wicker basket filled with long-stemmed pink roses and ageratum. Silver candle holders holding pink silk shaded tapers were placed at each end.

Miss Goettinger wore a gown of coral colored chiffon beaded in crystals.

Mrs. Goettinger was handsomely gowned in black velvet and sequins. Mrs. David Rothschild, mother of the groom-elect, wore a handsome gown of brown Chinchilla satin beaded in bronze.

The ushers and groomsmen were hosts at a dance following the dinner.

Garber Hall Will Be Scene Of College Dance

A special dance will be given Saturday evening, October 13, at Garber hall, for the members of the college set, under the supervision of Ed Merritt and Joe Eckford. Music will be furnished by Johnnie Jackson and his famous Indiana serenaders, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 o'clock. The chaperons for the occasion will be Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Joseph Raine, Mrs. Willie Van Winkle, Mrs. W. C. Jarnigan, Mr. C. E. Ed Street. The parents of the members of the college set are cordially invited to attend the dance.

Members of the Florida and Tech football teams will be guests of honor at the dance.

Miss Margaret Pratt Is Complimented.

Miss Margaret Pratt was complimented with a large bride-tee at which her cousin, Mrs. Henry Pratt, entertained Monday afternoon at her home on North Moreland avenue.

The spacious reception rooms were decorated with quantities of pink and white flowers, dahlias, cosmos and roses, and the color motif was carried out in the tallies, favors and prizes.

The guests' prize was a pink satin boudoir pillow and dainty hand-made handkerchiefs were presented to the attendants who were present, Miss Teleside Pratt, Miss Dolly Pratt and Mrs. Sherwood Pratt. The winner of the top score was awarded a set of Madeira serviettes and the consolation prize was a Japanese vase.

Mrs. Ernest Holditch and Mrs. A. G. Mathews assisted the hostess in entertaining.

Invited for the occasion were Miss Teleside Pratt, Miss Dolly Hart, Mrs. Sherwood Pratt, Mrs. Frank Downing, Mrs. Ernest Holditch, Mrs. C. J. Holditch, Mrs. Goodloe Jancyer, Jr., Mrs. Henry Seeger, Mrs. T. R. Robert, Mrs. Ralph Bardwell, Jr., Miss Helen Wilson, Mrs. Lawrence Hobart, Mrs. R. H. Pratt, Mrs. G. W. Mathews, Mrs. A. G. Miss Fanchon Armstrong is visiting friends and relatives in Washington, D. C.

Engagement Is Of Interest Here.

Friends in Atlanta of Miss Eleanor Harriet Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Levy, of New York, and member of a former Macon family, will be interested in the announcement of her engagement to Charles Ginsberg, of Brooklyn.

Miss Levy, together with her father and grandfather, Edgar E. Mayer, also of New York, have been making an extensive tour of the south. They have visited in Macon, where Miss Levy has many relatives, and where she was brilliantly entertained. They are now at the Piedmont hotel here.

Miss Levy's mother was before her marriage Miss Mamey F. Baer, of Macon. She was a grandchild of the late Valentine Kahn, also of Macon, and a niece of the late D. J. Baer, of that city.

Mr. Ginsberg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ginsberg, of Brooklyn, and is a member of a firm operating one of the largest importing businesses of dolls and toys in that city.

Luncheon at Club For Miss Johnson.

Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., entertained at a luncheon Monday at the Piedmont Driving club, complimenting Miss Jennie Johnson, bride-elect of this evening.

The luncheon table was arranged in the gray room and was beautifully appointed with a basket of varicolored dahlias encircled by silver candleholders holding pink unshaded tapers and bowls of glass fruit.

The guests were Miss Johnson and the members of her wedding party, which includes Miss Olive Caldwell, of New York; Miss Margaret Nelson, Miss Margaret Morgan, Miss Jennie Robinson, Miss Sarah Orme, Miss Louise Inman, Miss Emmie Nixon.

New York Visitor Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. Harry Hinman, of Oswego, N. Y., was the honor guest at a luncheon at which Mrs. James J. Clark entertained Monday afternoon at the East Lake Country club.

The game was played in one of the private rooms, which was effectively decorated with vases and baskets filled with cosmos.

The prizes were dainty bridge novelties.

Social Gaieties Will Honor Delegates to Convention

A series of social gaieties given by the members of the Rome Women's club will compliment the officers and delegates attending the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs which convenes in Rome, October 16 to 20 inclusive.

A reception honoring the visitors will be given Tuesday afternoon, October 16, at the Coosa Country Club. On Wednesday, October 17, a luncheon will be given the delegates at the Coosa Country Club at 10 o'clock. Wednesday evening, there will be a reception at Shorter college at 8:30 o'clock, with Dr. J. Blocker, president of the college, as host. An automobile ride to Darlington school will precede the reception.

Mrs. Peterson Is Indorsed By Montezuma Club

Mrs. Nichols Peterson, candidate for director general from Georgia in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was unanimously indorsed for this high office by the Montezuma Women's club on Friday, October 5, at the regular meeting held on that date.

The election for director general will take place at the convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs which will be held in Rome, October 16 to 20 inclusive.

Woman's Auxiliary Elects Officers In Marietta

The usual Saturday afternoon tea was not held at the Golf club this week, as it was the day for the annual election of officers for the woman's auxiliary. The officers for the past year were: President, Mrs. L. N. Trammell; secretary, Mrs. W. D. Neal; treasurer, Mrs. D. R. Little. All have done splendid work for the club, and all were re-elected. Mrs. Little declined to serve again, and Mrs. W. E. Schilling was elected treasurer in her stead. The board of directors of the club presented Mrs. Trammell with a handsome shopping bag and umbrella in recognition of her efficient administration.

Greene County Indorses Candidate.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, candidate for director general from Georgia, in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was indorsed by the Greene County Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting held Thursday afternoon, October 4.

The following indorsement was received by the editor of the woman's department of The Constitution:

"Greene County Federation of Women's Clubs unanimously indorses Mrs. Alonzo Richardson as state director at the regular meeting at Woodville, Ga., last Thursday afternoon.

Miss Estelle Colclough, president; Miss Mary Johnson, recording secretary.

He Gave You

The finest grain foods children ever get—airy, flaky Puffed Grains

Professor A. P. Anderson invented Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice. Thus he brought to millions of children the finest cereal dainties in existence.

The grains are steam exploded—shot from guns. Over 125 million explosions are caused in every kernel. Thus the food cells are broken for easy digestion. The grain elements are fitted to feed.

The grains are puffed to airy globules, 8 times normal size. They are flaky, flavorful, crisp. No other cereal dainties compare with their delights.

Quaker Puffed Rice

Growing children must have minerals, vitamins and bran

The purpose is to make whole grains delicious and digestible. Whole wheat supplies 12 minerals which growing children must have. It supplies their need of bran. And milk is rich in vitamins.

Every mother wants her children to get these elements in plenty, and every day. Then make whole wheat and milk a dish so tempting that they revel in it. Serve Quaker Puffed Wheat and milk. Never let a day go by without it.

Quaker Puffed Wheat

Millions of people are better fed since Puffed Grains were invented. Millions get more joy from breakfast. See that those in your home get their share.

Every night—Quaker Puffed Wheat in milk

Whiteford Ave. Voters Will Hold Meeting

The Whiteford Avenue school for Voters of the Eleventh ward will hold a meeting Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Whiteford Avenue school house. All members are urged to be present as there will be many important matters before the meeting. District chairmen will be elected at this meeting. Mrs. H. E. Stockbridge will be the speaker of the afternoon.

Y.W.C.A. Registry Secretary Finds Homes for Girls

Photograph by Walton Reeves Studio.

Mrs. E. B. Hume, room registry secretary of the Young Woman's Christian Association.

"The Young Women's Christian association seems to be conducting this fall what might be called a world's lost column, dealing with, instead of pocketbooks, umbrellas and feminine cases, just girls," says Mrs. E. B. Hume, Y. W. C. A. room registry secretary.

Friends of Colonel J. Colton Lykes were congratulating him Saturday on the attainment of his 70th birthday. Mrs. J. D. Anderson, who is secretary of the Cherokee Presbyterian, is attending the conference for secretaries at Nacoochee. Mrs. R. E. Butler and children have gone to Lakeland, Fla., to spend the winter. Mrs. Arthur Davenport left Monday for Chattanooga, where she will be the guest of Mrs. J. E. Sizor. She will remain for the wedding of Miss Nancy Sizor and Albert Taber on October 17.

Herbert Dodds, of New York city, is visiting his mother, Mrs. H. C. Dodds, in Marietta, and his sister, Mrs. Howard McNair, in Atlanta.

In showing her files where home owners are listed, Mrs. Hume explains that she has Atlanta homes that are open to elderly people, to families where there are children, to girls and women who can afford to pay for comfortable rooms as well as to those who must take less expensive ones. She lands the good women in homes who are taking girls in to give them a chance, and those who are keeping girls while they are ill and unable to work, possibly being able to pay for their board after recovery. The secretary declares that she does not worry about the divorce evil, if marriage is a failure and if the girls of today are going to the limit of their ability to get on, she is not the type of the past generation. "I know too many real home-makers who are renting extra bedrooms or keeping a few boarders to help out the family income and I know too many splendid girls who are in those homes, some holding good positions and others who have overcome troubles that would have crushed a young girl of the past generation, far too many for me to worry about all the kind of problems and how-tos that are claiming the entire thought of so many of our very best citizens who have a wholesome view of criticizing all girls and women."

The secretary explained that the Travelers' Aid sends her many girls and that if the Y. W. C. A. home at 56-62 West Baker street is filled to its limit of 103 girls; also the Y. W. C. A. annex to its limit of 40 girls, she then sends girls to homes in the city. She explains that the Y. W. C. A. homes and the church homes are given her first consideration, although in most instances, all are overcrowded and have waiting lists. Mrs. Hume is a Kentucky woman who had years of experience in social service before she began her present work with the local Y. W. C. A. In her closing remarks on her life of home-finding for girls she made a telling statement:

"If mothers will write me a request to find their daughters who are in Atlanta, I will do so. If there are girls who are ill, who need a friend or can be helped to better their living conditions, I will go to the limit of my office to help those girls. All relations will be confidential. If a girl can secure employment, as her own or part time, or if it is better than for her to come to a strange city and try to make her way."

It is worthy of note that of Atlanta's increasing population of business girls and women Mrs. Hume secured suitable living places for 704 of the number in 1922. The Y. W. C. A. home accommodated 490 girls, and the annex 260.

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. W. S. Jennings Is Indorsed By Florida Clubs

Mrs. W. S. Jennings, of Jacksonville, Fla., first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is a candidate for president of the general federation. The following article is from the Florida Times-Union of October 2:

"Resolutions supporting those passed by the Dural County Federation of Women's Clubs and the Jacksonville Federation of Mothers' Clubs, endorsing the candidacy of Mrs. W. S. Jennings of Jacksonville, Fla., for president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, were unanimously adopted yesterday by the Springfield Improvement association which is a member of the two former organizations."

"The name of Mrs. Jennings is recommended to the southeastern council of the General Federation for endorsement and it is believed that she will receive the solid support of the clubs throughout the south."

Mrs. Jennings at the present time is first vice president of the general federation. Its next biennial meeting will be held in Los Angeles, Cal., in June next year and the time is now considered ripe for launching Mrs. Jennings' candidacy.

Mrs. Jennings, who is a member of one of Florida's most prominent families, has served with distinction in women's club work in this state as well as with the national organization. She was president of the Florida federation for three years and has been for twelve years a member of the board of directors for Florida to the general federation to which she was elected first vice president four years ago.

"Since her connection with the national organization she has gained prominence by organizing club women for home demonstration work in thirty-nine states within a period of twenty-two months."

Many Guests Dine At East Lake Club

There was a large attendance of members and their friends at a delightful dinner dance, given by the East Lake Country club Saturday evening.

The Rita Harmony orchestra rendered music during dinner and for the dancing which followed.

Vari-colored flowers were the central decorations for the tables placed in the spacious sun parlor.

Many congenial parties were seen dining.

Mrs. J. D. Hunt was hostess to a party of nine, including C. H. McMillan, J. D. McMillan, Miss May Nelligan, of Boston, Mass.; Miss Laura Bell Roberts, Miss Frederica Colburn, of Atlanta; Miss Simpson, of Boston, Mass.; George C. Fralich and J. D. Hunt, Jr.

Miss Estelle Lindsey was the guest of R. E. Hodgson.

T. S. Hillman entertained Miss Margaret Bryan.

Raleigh Cassella's guest was Miss Grace Freeman.

O. C. Lyon, of New York, was the guest of L. R. Watkins.

D. B. Thornton entertained a party of five from W. E. Gathright, of New York.

Dining together were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. LaRoach, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Chalmer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeter and Mrs. J. B. Rowe.

Among those seen dancing were: George Nix, E. D. Tompkins, Almer Jones, Francis Harris, William Noyes, Tom Hume, Charles Wynne, Mr. Wilson, F. M. Nash, Jr., Keith Conway, T. F. Bussy, Henry Kurit, L. N. Stanley, Misses Virginia Ashe, Margaret Rogers, Elizabeth Worley, Margaret Ransom, Elizabeth Demmock, Ann Cooper, Lillian Dayly, Margaret Zoder, Lillian May Bailey, Mrs. Weeks, Misses Helen Bouziques, Helen Foster, Roberta Cook, Sarah Wimberly, Isolyne Barker, Ruth Clark, Lelia Ponder, Francis White, Elmer Wesley, Venice Mayson, Marie Simpson, George R. D. George, H. W. Freeman, P. R. Bouziques, J. B. Osborn, Nat. Thornton, Harold Mitchell, Edwin Milam, Cecil Hambricht, J. R. Hodge, L. B. Huse, E. B. Zachary, William Franklin, Dr. R. E. Latta, C. F. Nonemaker, S. Hastings and Captain Frye.

Home-finding for girls she made a telling statement:

"If mothers will write me a request to find their daughters who are in Atlanta, I will do so. If there are girls who are ill, who need a friend or can be helped to better their living conditions, I will go to the limit of my office to help those girls. All relations will be confidential. ## Censorship Unnecessary, Declares Mrs. Futrelle

An illuminating address by Mrs. Jacques Futrelle, representing the Authors' League of America, featured the regular meeting of the Atlanta Women's club Monday afternoon when several hundred members were present.

Mrs. Futrelle stated at the outset that the Authors' League of America might be compared to "Who's Who of America" and that it was an organization of men and women actuated by big efforts and doing the copyright things of the world. She emphasized the fact that this organization was fighting censorship in its broad sense. Censorship of books, plays, newspapers, etc., because it believed that it was entirely unnecessary, with the laws already upon the statute books prohibiting these mediums becoming objectionable from a moral standpoint. She spoke at length upon some pending national legislation in the outcome of which she was especially interested.

Mrs. Futrelle commented upon the right of censorship of motion pictures in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kansas and paid a great tribute to the Atlanta better films committee for its splendid work in this district, declaring that with its supervision, censorship was not needed in Georgia. She pointed out that the following films were highly praised by the Authors' league: "The Miracle Man," "Broken Blossoms," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "Robin Hood" and "The Covered Wagon," the latter being especially commended.

The speaker left the impression upon her audience that the Authors' League of America was an organization ideal in its object and functioning as a practical war. Mrs. Richardson Presides.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the club, presided over the meeting and introduced the speaker, by saying that while Mrs. Futrelle was now a resident of New York, we still claimed her as an out own.

Miss John M. Cooper, chairman of the music committee of the club, introduced Harry Pomeroy, one of Atlanta's accomplished violinists, who delighted the audience with three beautiful selections. Miss Frances Stovall at the piano.

Mrs. Earl Watson, in her attractive reading of the "Telephone Conversation" between "Mose and Marge."

Noted Bible Teacher To Conduct Lessons.

Miss Amy Manning Taylor, of Chicago, will continue through the present week the series of Bible lessons which she has been giving each afternoon at Eggleston hall.

These lessons are given from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock and there is no admission charge. The literary character of the four gospels will be the subject for Monday. The Book of Acts will receive Miss Manning's earnest exposition on Tuesday, and the Epistle to the Philippians will be the subject on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Miss Taylor makes Bible teaching a profession and for a number of years has devoted her entire life to it, doing so in a scholarly and scientific way to which she brings the inspiration of spiritual guidance. Her James Gray, president of the Moody Bible institute, indorses Miss Taylor as a teacher of distinction, and among the prominent ministers of various Christian churches who approve Miss Taylor's work may be mentioned the Right Reverend James Winchester, bishop of Arkansas; Dr. William Evans, noted teacher of the Bible, and many others.

Regular visits are made each year by Miss Taylor to Birmingham, Memphis, Houston, Texas, and other cities, and her presence in Atlanta is on the occasion of her first open date in three years. Many efforts to arrange for her coming having failed because of previous arrangements covering her entire time, she possessed of a well-modulated voice, a pleasing presence, and keen intellect, Miss Taylor carries on this work of Bible exposition without any sectarian bias or denominational leanings and her lectures are attended by members of all churches.

Attendance each afternoon overflows Eggleston hall and the enthusiasm aroused by her first series of lectures in Atlanta leads to the hope expressed by a number of church members that she will visit Atlanta for her list of cities visited each year. The funds collected by a free will offering are devoted by Miss Taylor to the upkeep of two missions in the Cumberland mountains.

Miss Ella McCoy Weds B. J. Kent Saturday.

The marriage is announced of Miss Ella McCoy and B. J. Kent which occurred in the study of the Third Baptist church Saturday evening, September 22, Rev. T. E. McCutchen, pastor of the church, officiating.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to make it, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever made it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, get Pinex, 1923, on the money label, with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. ## STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

CHAPTER VIII.
Sunshine and Shadow.
When Julian Barton came into Ann's living room a few minutes later, he found only Madeleine seated demurely before the fire. So intent was she with the tea things, that she almost failed to see him until he had crossed the room and stood directly before her.

"The little start she gave was cleverly done for one not many months out of a convent, and her sweeping lashes hid the light in her lovely eyes. She offered a cool slim hand. 'Ann said that if you came, I was to play hostess for her. She had to leave.'"

"I know, I met her in the hallway. 'Dear, discreet Ann.'"

"The words were light, but there was a curious business in his voice and the light in his eyes was blinding. The next moment she was in his arms."

"She made no effort to escape. 'How long are you going to keep me like this before you marry me?' 'I want you! I want you. Say you care!'"

"Madeleine was all pretense at coquetry. She raised her eyes to his eager eyes and lips, and there was no faint echo from the ghost of Duane Farley. This was the love she was destined for. She knew her man when he came to her and, as though she were strangely endowed with some prophetic vision, she knew, too, that there would never be another in her heart or thought."

The gray afternoon closed down into a gray twilight; the fire ceased to crackle and sputter to embers; the shadows gathered and crept closer, but the two, in their enchanted paradise, neither saw nor heard.

Outside, in the dusk, past Julian Barton's patiently waiting car, Stephen Lane walked up the avenue on his way from the office. He had sent his car home empty and walked from preference, drawing in deep breaths of the sharp air.

At the corner opposite his own home, a child suddenly darted at him, caught him gleefully around the knees, crying:

"Daddy! Daddy! I thought I was lost!"

A stab like a knife-thrust went through Lane's heart. He caught the youngster in his hungry arms and raised him to his shoulder. His cold, hard, gray eyes were marvelously softened.

Almost instantly a man dashed around the corner, looked anxiously to right and left, spied the youngster in Lane's arms.

"Hey, you!" he advanced hastily. "That's my kid. What're you—?"

The street light at the corner flashed on as he reached the pair, and he stopped suddenly, relief and embarrassment struggling ludicrously on his nondescript face.

"Oh, sir, beg pardon, Mr. Lane! I didn't know it was you sir, and with all these kidnapers around—"

Lane set down the child and looked more closely at the man. He recognized him as an under-clerk in his office.

"That's all right, Adams. The little fellow mistook me for his daddy. He thought he was lost, and I guess I looked pretty good to him."

"I got away from me while I was in the butcher shop buying chops for supper," explained the clerk with an anxious effort to make amends to the boss. "He's that active, you have to watch him every minute."

"I hope you'll excuse me, sir, for speaking so abrupt, but these stories about kidnapers sure have me worried. No that he be worth much to them; but they could have all I've got before I'd lose this little 'rd, even if there are three more like him at home."

Lane rested his gloved hand on the child's head and turned the chubby, rosy face up to his. His own face was softened.

"You're right, Adams. He's more precious than—well, than all I possess of this world's goods."

A fire was burning on the hearth in the library. He divested himself of hat, overcoat and stick without ringing for Masters and sat down heavily before the fire. The memory of a childish voice crying "Daddy" was ringing in his ears. His thoughts were very bitter with desire so long denied.

Adams, a poor clerk on a weekly pittance, had four children to carry on his name. With was he, with his millions, denied even one? He heard the sound of a motor in the drive. It was Barbara coming in from her afternoon ride. But he didn't send for her, didn't even acquaint her of his presence. Somehow, he didn't want to see her. She would remind him too poignantly of his defeated hopes, his empty dreams. Could he have seen her at that moment, the trend of his thoughts might have undergone a change. Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.

Masonic Ceremony Attends the Laying Of Cornerstone

The cornerstone will be laid in the new English Avenue public school on Wednesday, October 10, and this ceremony will be attended by Masonic officers. On Friday, October 12, the cornerstone of Samuel M. Inman school will be officially laid. In the following article, Miss Mamie J. Pitts, principal of State Street school, and chairman of the publicity department of the principals' normal class, tells an interesting story concerning the customs and history of this special feature connected with the laying of the cornerstones in the new public schools of Atlanta.

"The laying of the cornerstones of the various school buildings have been attended by a representative from each public school in the city, bearing the school banner, and presenting a short note of greeting to be deposited."

"One of the greetings recently deposited in the Moses W. Formwalt cornerstone was 'We extend hearty congratulations. May the coming years bring abundant fruitage in trained minds, healthy bodies, and high moral characters, thereby furnishing ample equipment for the world's work.'"

"There are thirteen school cornerstones to be placed, and the same ceremonies will be held at each under the direction of Grand Master Joseph P. Bowdoin."

"The laying of cornerstones is an age-old custom, handed down from pagan days, when there is no lack of evidence that living victims were immured in the foundations of structures to secure stability."

"The object of placing articles in cornerstones was originally for their safekeeping, and were never intended to be dragged out at the demolition of the building in order to resurrect the fame, or prominence, of the donors."

"Formerly, the stone was always placed at the northeast corner, where the first rays of the rising sun would fall, but in these topsy turvy times any point of the compass is accepted as the chief cornerstone, and God's challenge 'to Job in chapter 38 sounds the clarion note, 'Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth?' 'Who laid the cornerstones thereof?'"

Approximately 700 colored teachers from 19 states attended the first half of the summer session at Hampton Institute.

MAKING GOOD

We had the nerve to open an exclusive optical store in 1905. We had the ability to "make good." Anybody can make claims; "delivering the goods" is really what leads to success. We claim to have one of the soundest and most reliable exclusive optical stores in the states. We claim we use every endeavor to treat our patients courteously and fairly. We claim that the welfare of our patients is our first consideration—but the claim is only the smaller half. As to the larger half, ask any of the better oculists, physicians, or any of our patients. We are willing to risk our reputation on their judgment—they will tell you we have made good as an exclusive optical store. No side lines.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

The Length of Your Skirt Depends On the Hour of the Day More Than On Any Arbitrary Decree of Fashion.

There are seemingly no new thrills to be gained from short skirts and few from long ones. The very short skirt became too short, and apparently the long one following it became too long. There is still more chance of causing leads to turn and eyes to turn by wearing a skirt that barely escapes the ground than by wearing one nearer the knees than the ankles. You may have observed that a long and trailing skirt may be worn quite as impudently as a very short one. The other day an audacious young woman walked through the streets of a conservative old town wearing a skirt that touched the ground at one side. Men smiled and turned, and Mrs. Grundy felt somehow that it was very indecent. A short skirt would have seemed infinitely more modest.

France took up the very short skirt first, and we Americans assured each other that we never would wear short skirts—at least such short skirts. In due time we forgot our prejudices and followed suit. Then having fairly launched the short skirt in America, France turned about and began wearing very long skirts. We looked on and pronounced them ugly. We were sure that we would never wear them. They were dowdy, and combined with the low waist they were unbecomingly ugly. But again we forgot our prejudice and followed suit. And now back again switches France in favor of a shorter skirt.

According to the best judgment the question of the length of skirts will no longer be an absorbing one. For the simple reason that you may now wear almost any length skirt you wish and still be in the fashion. Many of the dressmakers in Paris—Doubilet especially—have shown skirts as short as seven inches from the ground. The same dressmakers, however, also show the long skirt. Almost always the long skirt is for evening or formal afternoon, while the short skirt is for street and sport wear.

The sketch shows a street frock with a skirt that is not only short, but very scant as well. This skirt is of black velvet, and over it is worn a tunic of red cloth embroidered in dull gold thread and tied at the back with narrow black ribbon.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Removes Iodine Stains.
Ammonia poured through materials that have been stained with iodine will remove all traces of the stain.

Not Properly Alred.
Pots and pans put away with their lids tightly on are very apt to retain the odor of the food last cooked in them. Put them away lidless.

Kills Insects.
One woman gives her closets a painting inside with cedar oil once a year, and, while a little expensive, she has never complained about insects anywhere in her home.

Before It Goes.
When hubby asks you to send a suit to the tailor's for pressing, go through the pockets carefully so that nothing valuable is sent along. I might add, this is the only time hubby secures the thought of going through his pockets.

Cleaning Cuffs.
To clean stained vinegar cuffs, half fill with hot soapsuds to which one teaspoonful of baking soda has been added. Drop in some broken egg shells, and let stand for an hour, shaking every now and then. Rinse with hot water and dry.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

No. 1538
For the little girl what could be more chic than the rolled and scalloped soft chin featured in hat pattern No. 1538? It may be made of cloth, taffeta or velvet. In purchasing children's hats it is always difficult to find one for the little tot which is not either too babyish or too top-heavy in the crown. Model No. 1538 solves this problem in using a shirred crown which just fits the child's head, and the result is a hat smarter and more becoming than you could ordinarily purchase. The directions given are so clear and the pattern so simple that the making presents no difficulties.

Material Required.
One yard Grace wire, 1 lining, 1 yard 20-inch material or 5-8 yard 36-inch material, 1 tassel, 3-8 yard dressmaker's canvas.

HAT PATTERN ORDER.

This order will bring you pattern and working instructions for making hat illustrated above. Fill in name and address, enclose 25 cents in stamps, postal note or coin—address your order to Hat Pattern Department, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

CARD PARTY DAINTIES.

Serve plain cakes with apple sauce and ice cream. This calls for a tablecloth made of apple sauce, which should have been put through the vegetable press. Put some plain vanilla ice cream in the bottom of a sherbert cup, then two tablespoons of the apple sauce, and on top of this a heaping tablespoon of slightly sweetened whipped cream. This is delicious served with coffee.

For refreshments at a small and informal card party slightly buttered slices of nut bread served with hot chocolate topped with whipped cream is delicious. To make the nut bread use this recipe:

Nut Bread.
Scald a half-cup of milk and add a half-cup of boiling water, a tablespoon of molasses and a tablespoon of butter. Let this become lukewarm. In the meantime dissolve a yeast cake in two or three tablespoons of lukewarm water and add this to the liquid when tepid, adding a half-teaspoon of salt and a teaspoon of sugar. Knead it up a cup of pecan or walnut meats chopped and flour enough to knead and let it rise until double its bulk. Now knead it and divide into two or three loaves and let it rise again. Then bake in a slow oven for an hour.

None of us eat as much fruit as we should. A delicious refreshment for the late summer or early autumn card party consists of choice fruits, peaches, grapes, pears, plums, apples, etc. The fruit should be arranged in attractive dishes, allowing one dish for each table. Then pass plate, fruit knife and fork and fruit napkin to each guest. Finger bowls should, of course, follow.

Peach shortcake with coffee makes a delicious refreshment dish for late summer or autumn card parties. Peaches may be served in other ways. If you have large good looking peaches peel and cut in halves, allowing one large peach for each person. Place a half on each plate and fill the pit space with a mixture of chopped nuts and berry jam. Place peach halves on top and sprinkle with powdered sugar and top with a little whipped cream if desired.

It is an interesting thing that in communities where the custom of serving fruit in various forms for card parties has been started it seems to become very generally liked.

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicy Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 14 ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—(adv.)

It's hard to wait for biscuits like these

Light, feathery biscuits, piping hot from the oven will awaken the most sluggish appetite. Make them with MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour, and you will have uniformly better biscuits—lighter, fluffier and more appetizing.

People call it "The Flour Without a Doubt" because it is already mixed with exactly the right amount of pure ingredients. You just add milk or cold water and shortening—and the biscuits are ready for the oven.

MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour is made by the Ford Flour Company, millers since 1895, the originators of self-rising flour. In spite of the many imitations, it is holding its old friends and making new ones every day. Here's the proof—over 600,000 more bags of MERRY WIDOW were used in 1922 than in 1920. Try it. You will never change. Ask for it by name.

Treasure and Trouble Therewith

BY GERALD BANNER.

It was after midnight and only a few faint lights were visible to Sheep Bar. The place was small, a main street flanked by frame houses. Sleep held it. Mindful of dogs, Garland, the outlaw, kept his horse to the soft earth near the sidewalk, shooting glances right and left. But Sheep Bar was dead; there was not a stir of life as he passed, not the click of a latch, not a face at door or window.

At its farther end the town broke into a scattering of detached houses. The last of these, a one-story cabin straggling to its fall on the edge of a stream, sent forth a pale ray from a wide, uncurtained window. Across the pane, painted in blue, were the words "Hop Sing, Chinese Restaurant," and within the light of a kerosene lamp showed a bare white-washed room set forth in tables and having at one end a small counter.

Garland drew up, listened, then dropped off his horse and led it toward the hotel. Before he reached it a side door opened and a head was thrust out. A whispered word passed and the owner of the head emerged—a Chinaman, shadowy and shadow-noiseless. He slipped through the grass and with an "Almighty boss," that might have been a murmur of the stirred leaves, took the horse and disappeared with it toward a rear room.

Garland went into the kitchen. In this room, lit by a wall lamp, its window giving on a tangled growth of shrubs, sat Knapp, sprawled before the stove.

Their greetings were brief, and drawing up to the table they began the plan for the next night's work. The silence without rose the horses' soft whinnies to one another and then the Chinaman's returning passed through the grass and the rasp at the closing door. He put a bottle and glasses before the men, slipped speechless into the restaurant, and an animated shadow with the tramp in his hand. This he set on the table in his own room, and sitting before it, began moving the balls in his adding machine.

It was he who heard first. His hand, raised to move a line of the balls, hung snappily, his eyes riveted on the wall opposite. He half rose; his meager body stiffened as he felt the muscles had suddenly become steel; his face turned in wild question to the room beyond. He was up and had hissed a terrified, "Lookout, boss, someone's come!" when a rending blow fell on the door.

For a breath there was stillness, then pandemonium. It all came together—the breaking in of the door, the rat-like rush of the men, the crash of falling furniture, of shattered glass, of dark scrambling figures, and the blinding flash of a revolver. The Chinaman's face, ape-like in its terror, showed above the blankets of his bunk. Knapp lay on the floor, caught by the falling table, and in the window jagged edges of glass and a trail of blood on the sill showed the way Garland had gone. In the doorway, a sheriff stood with his leveled revolver, while the voices and tramping of men came from the shrubs outside.

CHAPTER VII.

The Idea.

From his parlor window in the Argonaut hotel, Royce Mayer looked down on the street's swarming level. On the then up at the sky's leaden pall. The bloom of his adventure was worn off. He had thought of leaving, going to the south, and then he decided against it. There were several reasons why it was better for him to stay. One was the money in Sacramento. It was not only that the store was so grossly diminished—his gambling losses had made astonishing inroads in it—but he feared its theory and he hated his trips there. He dared not offer it to the bank. He always spent a bad night in the place, on a stone-laid bed. In a ditty, unending and unending in his shabby clothes was forced to patronize cheap eating houses where the fare sickened him. He managed it very adroitly, carrying in his old suitcase the hat, coat, shoes and tie he had bought in Sacramento, changing into them in the men's washroom in the Sacramento depot, and emerging therefrom the Harry Romaine who rented room 19 in the Whittaker House.

But outside all these lesser boredom and anxieties there was another bigger than all the rest and growing every day: After the money was gone, what? That was what he had been thinking about for the past week, shut up in his hotel room, his hands deep in his pockets, his eyes morosely fixed on space.

Through a social acquaintance whom he had picked up he had been invited as an emergency guest to a dinner given by the Alstons, here in the idea had germinated in his mind. It was only a seed at first, then it began to grow and had now assumed a definite shape.

He had gone to call on the Alston girls. There had been several visits before that in return for continued hospitality; but this was the first of what might be called a second series, the first after the acceptance of his idea. He had found Christie in and alone. She had talked bashfully, a shy-eyed novice with blush-rose cheeks and fingers feeling cold in the pressure of farewell. The hand of fate pointed to her. This child, this blushing, perturbed, unformed creature, as soft and fiberless as a skein of her own hair, was fruit for his plucking.

That was his idea.

He had brooded on it all the week. He thought of it now, his hands deep in his pockets. He looked at his watch—not half past five—at least an hour to pass, before dinner. The green tables began to call, and he turned from the window to the dusk of the room, tempted and restless. He must do something or he would answer the call, and he searched his resources for a diversion at once enlivening and inexpensive. The search brought up on Pancha. She and her mysteries were always amusing; her love flattered him; blues and horum died in her presence. Dangerous she could be but dangerous he would not let her be—his was the master mind, cold self-governing, and fiberless. Of more swing around the circle with Pancha and then good-by.

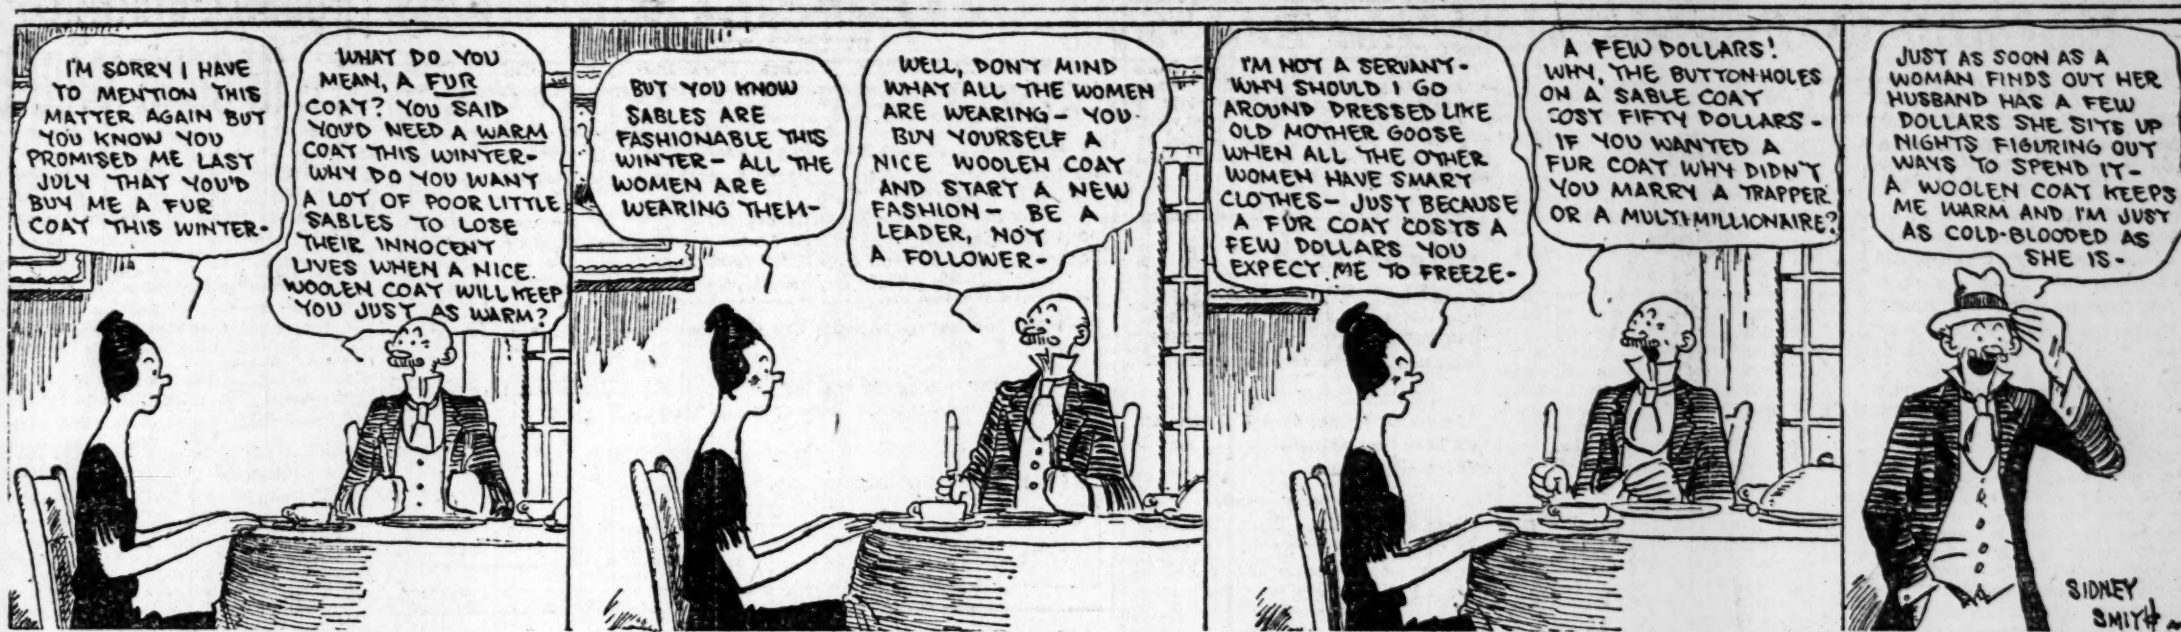

At 11:15 P.M. Hitt, txbib xib t tabin. But that night, after the call at Pancha's apartments, Mayer could not sleep; the afternoon newspapers had announced the capture of Knapp. He kept assuring himself there was nothing to fear, yet he did fear. Dark possibilities rose on his imagination—in

She was going shopping, but when he claimed a moment—just a moment, he saw her so seldom—went to the bench he indicated and dropped down on it.

Under his subtle flattery and skillful compliments Chrystie soon began as if she was coming to life after a long period of deadness. She had a consciousness of sudden growth, of expanding and outflowing, of bursting into glowing bloom.

So Chrystie, guileless and easily led, assisted in the development of the idea.

She made an engagement to meet Mr. Mayer four days later in the Plaza and go with him to see the orchids in the park greenhouse. And it was to be kept secret from Lorry, who might not approve.

After that first one, they had many long walks together.

Lorry might have seen deeper, but her attention was diverted. For the first time in her life she was thinking a good deal about her own affairs.

The only other person near enough to notice was Fong.

One morning in the kitchen, when he and "Miss Lilly" were making the menu for a new dinner, he had said: "Miss Lilly, come this time."

"No, I'm not asking Mr. Burrage to this one, Fong."

"Why not ask Mr. Burrage?"

Fong persisted, slightly reproving. "Because I've asked him several and he hasn't come."

He came this time. You like him now, Lorry.

"No, I don't want to, I've enough without him. It's all made up."

No one but Fong bothered about this.

Mr. Burrage's absence, but that night before the mirror in her own room, she addressed her reflection with bitterness:

"Why should any man like me? I'm not pretty, I'm not clever, I'm as slow as a snail."

She saw tears rise in her eyes and finished ruthlessly: "I'm such a fool that I cry about a man who's done everything but say straight out, 'I don't care for you, you bore me, do leave me alone.'"

So Lorry, nursing her hidden wound, was forgetful of her stewardship. It was a pity, for there were times when Chrystie, caught in a contrite mood and questioned, would have told. Such times generally came when she was preparing for one of her walks.

At these moments her adventure had a way of suddenly losing its glamour and appearing as a shallow and unbecoming performance. It was the certainty of Lorry's disapproval that made secrecy necessary. Mayer soon realized that Lorry was the governing force, the loved and feared dictator. But he was a cunning woe. He put no ban upon confession—if Chrystie wanted to tell, he was the last person to stop it. And having placed the responsibility in her hands, he wore closer round the little fly the parti-colored web of illusion. He made her feel the thrill of the clandestine, the romance of stolen meetings, see herself not as a green, affrighted girl, but a woman queening it over her own destiny, mate for him in eagle flight above the humdrum multitude.

CHAPTER VII.

Mark Calls.

Mark Burrage saw the winter pass and only went once to the Alstons and then they were not at home. He had refused three invitations to the house. Sometimes at night he studied the future. The outlook might have daunted a less resolute spirit. A great gap yawned between the present and the time when he could go to Lorry Alston and say, "Let me take care of you; I can do it now."

When Crowder rallied him about this statement of the Alstons, he had been short and offhand—didn't care for society, hadn't time to waste now round being polite. Crowder, realizing his own responsibility—it was he who had taken Mark to the Alston house—was kind but firm.

"It's up to you to go and see those girls. It's not the decent thing to drop out without a reason. They've gone out of their way to be civil to you, and you know, old chap, they're ladies."

Mark grunted, and frowning as at a disagreeable duty, said he'd go.

It took him some weeks to get there. Twice he started, circled the house, and tramped off over the hills. The third time he got as far as the front gate, weakened and turned away. After long abstinence the thought of meeting Lorry's eyes, touching her hand, created a condition of turmoil that made him a coward, that, while he loathed to enter, drew him back like a sinner from the scene of his temptation. Then an evening came when, his jaw set, his heart thumping like a steam piston, he went forth with a face as hard as a stone.

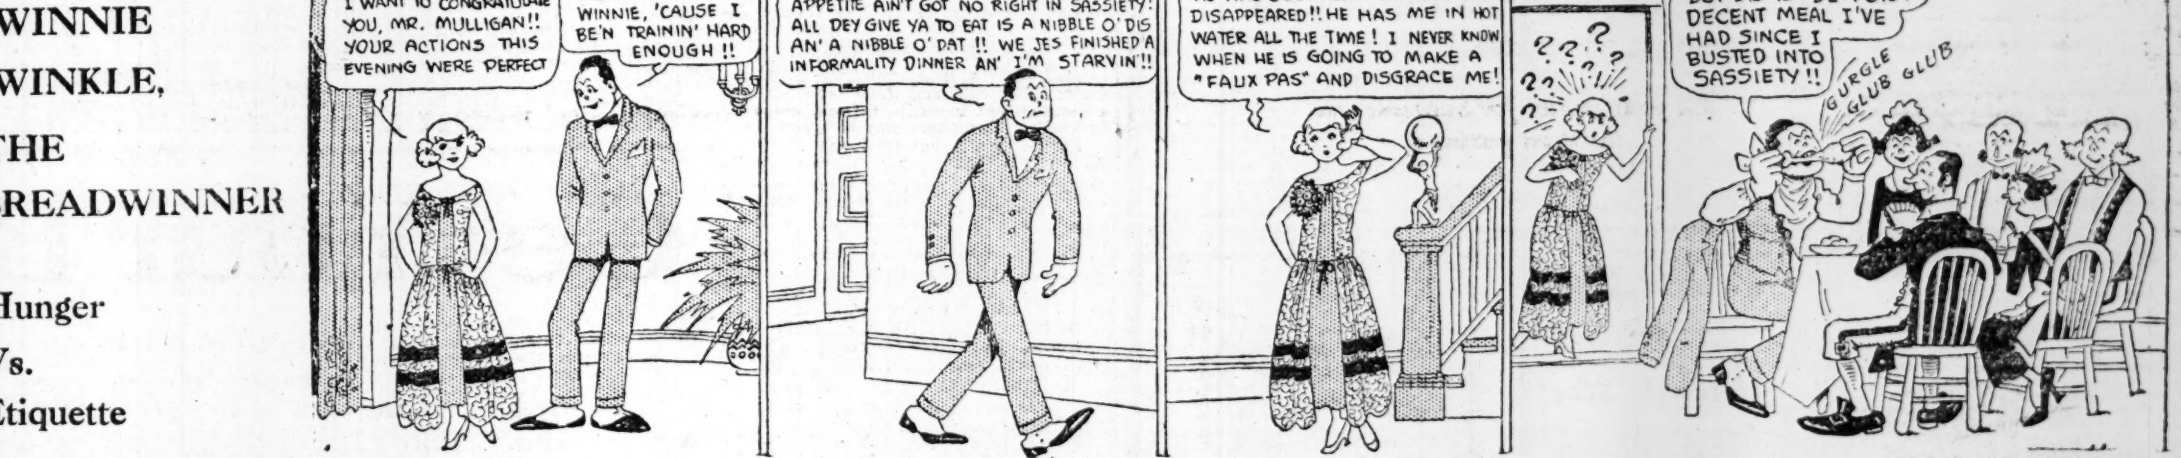

Continued Tomorrow.

U. S. Cotton Crop Estimates Harmful to Trade-Price

BY THEO H. PRICE.

Editor Commerce and Finance.

New York, October 8.—It is not too much to say that the sum which the south will receive for this year's cotton crop will be substantially diminished by the two government reports issued last Tuesday. On the morning report the market advanced a cent and a half. On the afternoon report it advanced another cent and a half. The market advanced a cent and a half.

Neither report shed any new light upon the situation or disproved anything previously believed. The morning report was perhaps less than had been expected by those who had not taken the September 17-18 into consideration, but the condition figures were almost exactly in line with the average of those previously compiled. The afternoon report, however, was a surprise, for it indicated that the crop was larger than had been expected.

But the effect has been to drive intelligent speculation out of cotton. People of substance who try to operate logically will not take the risk of a situation so obvious and the consequence is that we now hear of speculators who are not speculating, but who are simply buying and selling on the basis of the market.

It is entirely natural that those who are not speculating will not take the risk of a situation so obvious and the consequence is that we now hear of speculators who are not speculating, but who are simply buying and selling on the basis of the market.

Meantime the dry goods market is active, cotton exports show an increase of 33 per cent on last year's figures, the cottonized stock in New York is down to about 300 bales and the mills have shown better judgment in not being so active for seed, and need have not consequently declined. In practically all parts of the cotton belt, however, they are still bringing prices which will not allow the mill to break even on present market values, and it is therefore to be expected that seed will still further decline.

Reports from all over the belt indicate that cottonseed is in a state of inferior quality and a large proportion of the present grain run of seed is damaged. Cake and meal have shown some strength during the week on account of the feeding demand, and some little buying in Texas by exporters. At the same time, cottonseed meal is too high for use in fertilizers, and will likely be sold for the next two months.

News, Views And Reviews

STOCK LETTER.

New York, October 8.—The only stocks that showed improvement today were the coal and rail stocks. The coal stocks advanced in connection with the eastern coal strike, while the rail stocks advanced on the basis of the railroads' improved earnings.

Industrial stocks developed a weak tone and considerable pressure was exerted against the steel and automobile stocks. The steel stocks declined 1/4 point, while the automobile stocks declined 1/2 point.

New Orleans, October 8.—Cotton got off to a bad start today, rallied sharply during the afternoon under heavy pressure and ended with a loss of 1/4 point. The market was active, with a large volume of trading.

Without the aid of speculation it is not to be expected that he can insist upon more than 30 cents a pound, for the cotton is not in a position to demand more.

STOCK LETTER.

New York, October 8.—The future, both in the cotton and in the stock market, is a matter of great importance. The cotton market is expected to be active, with a large volume of trading.

SMALL CHANGES IN CURB MARKET

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, October 8.—Net changes in today's curb market were rather small. Opening prices displayed a divided trend, oil shares being depressed while buying support was forthcoming for numerous industrials.

Standard Oil of New York closed fractionally lower on the day and more than a point below the high for the day. This was true of all of the Standard of Indiana, Prairie Oil and Gas declined 5 points, while Magnolia Petroleum closed one point higher but 5 points below its high point of the day.

After rallying briefly at the start, industrials generally sold off. The Standard Oil of New York closed fractionally lower on the day and more than a point below the high for the day.

DAYS SUMMARY.
Total sales $12,400 shares.
Twenty industrials averaged 88.50; net loss, 71.
High, 1923, 105.85; low, 86.92.
Twenty railroads averaged 89.47; net loss, 10.
High, 1923, 90.51; low, 79.38.

New York, October 8.—Prices lost ground in today's relatively active stock market. Heavy selling of speculative industrial shares, which registered net losses of one to nearly four points, brought to a halt a promising upward movement; may shares advanced one to two points before yielding to the general selling pressure.

The buying of railroad shares was based not only on high current earnings but on speculative expectations of some favorable merger and dividend developments in some of the leading shares. Baltimore and Ohio, and Chicago and North Western, which had been under pressure recently on reports of unsatisfactory earnings, touched a new low at 25 1/2.

Strength of Marine preferred, which closed a point higher at 24, was associated with reports that the company was bringing suit for alleged violation of an agreement by the United States government to purchase ships during the war. The American Smelting and Refining Co. touched a new low at 25 1/2.

Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent, advanced to five and thence to 5 1/2. The time money market was quiet. Some 30-day loans were made at 3 1/2, but the bulk of the business was for 30 days at 5 1/2.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet but firm. Demand sterling advanced 5/8 of a cent to $4.55 1/2 and French francs gained nearly 10 points at 16 1/2. The dollar was back at 12 cents a hundred million.

In the very heart of a rapidly-developing north side residential section is Glendale Terrace, bordered by Eighth Street on the North, Sixth Street on the South, North Jackson Street on the East and Bedford Place on the West. This property is now undergoing extensive improvements, and for the first time is being offered prospective home owners.

Glendale Terrace will have all modern improvements, including paved streets, water, lights and sewerage. It is only three short blocks from three different car lines—just ten minutes by trolley from the center of town.

These lots measure up to the Adair Standard of values. The low prices prevailing (some very desirable sites now available for only $2,500) will not last long. Look over the property yourself; each lot is plainly tagged with size and price figures.

Federal Charge Of Soap Trust 'Up for Hearing'

Cincinnati, October 8.—Hearings were begun here today on the complaint filed in 1922 by the federal trade commission against Procter & Gamble company on the ground that one of its widely marketed brands of soap was advertised and sold in violation of section five of the trade commission act making it unlawful to engage in unfair competition.

Hearings were held in New York early in June of this year at which witnesses for the government produced testimony in support of the complaint. Testimony is being offered here by the Procter & Gamble company in defense, the federal trade commission having in July denied a motion to dismiss the complaint. Testimony is being heard by Examiner Addison for the commission, which is represented by William C. Reeves, assistant counsel. The sessions will continue for several days.

BLONDE IS NAMED BY WEBB WITNESS

White Plains, N. Y., October 8.—Among witnesses who appeared today before the grand jury to testify in its inquiry into the death of Mrs. Gertrude Gorman Webb were Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hunter, of Devon, Pa., uncle and aunt of Mrs. Webb.

"There is a woman in this case," Mr. Hunter told reporters. "She is a blond and her name is Louise." He said Mrs. Webb was offended shortly after her wedding because Mr. Webb spoke to Louise.

Mrs. Hunter brought numerous telegrams and letters which she said Webb had sent her during his wife's illness.

WILL CONTESTED.
New York, October 8.—Further objection to probate of the will of Mrs. Gertrude Emily Gorman Webb, who died September 5 at Rye, N. Y., was filed today on behalf of Irene Augusta Hunter Berbyshire, of Chambersburg, Pa., and William T. Hunter, Jr., of Devon, Pa., cousins of the decedent.

Both objections were based on the ground that Mrs. Webb lacked testamentary capacity when she executed the contested will which left most of her property to her husband, Charles Webb.

The objectors alleged themselves to be legatees under a prior will and declared that in execution of the contested will Mrs. Webb was unduly influenced by her husband or some person or persons acting in his behalf.

A House Built to Sell Without a Mortgage or Loan

MUST NECESSARILY BE A WELL BUILT HOUSE IN WHICH ONLY GOOD MATERIAL has been used by skillful workmen so that the house will not only be attractive, well arranged and comfortable, but must also be DURABLE.

No shoddy material can be used; no botch work can be done for the very simple reason that until the house is more than one-half paid for, the seller has more interest in it than the purchaser, and if the seller is also the builder he protects himself at the same time that he protects you from the results of poor material and workmanship.

When you buy a home from us on our one hundred monthly payment plan without a loan, you get a house built of the best material and workmanship, planned for beauty, convenience and comfort and one that will make you a home of which you can be proud. Houses built by us at Capitol View—16 years ago are still standing erect like soldiers and testify to the truth of the claim made above.

We have just completed a charming five-room bungalow on Everhart Street with living room, dining room, pantry, kitchen, two bed rooms with a closet in each, bath room, medicine cabinet, large front porch, screened back porch, hot and cold water, electricity and gas, on an elevated corner lot 50x157 feet. All for $5,200—$300 cash and $50 per month.

Phone Mr. Settle, Walnut 2844, for appointment.

Federal Fliers Aid in Studies Of Fever Cause

New Orleans, October 8.—The cotton boll weevil and the hay fever "germ" have nothing in common but aviators at Tallulah, La., where the federal department of agriculture is fighting the cotton pest experimentally by dusting the fields with poison discharged from airplanes. have learned something that shows why fever may run riot almost anywhere.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Dr. William Schaeffer, of this city, an authority on the fever, disclosed for the first time today that the aviators had been confining their efforts solely to poisoning the weevil.

They set out to learn just how high ragweed pollen, the hay fever producer, ascended into the air and have brought down specimens from an altitude of 4,000 feet and with greater heights yet to be explored.

"We have been taking the airplane experiments for the last month and our work is not yet finished," said Dr. Schaeffer. "The pollen has been found at high altitudes where the land ascended to an elevation of several thousand feet, but until this experiment we were not aware pollen could be found in the air 4,000 feet above land. Our first experiment at Tallulah was with an airplane flying 50 miles an hour at an elevation of 1,000 feet. This revealed the pollen. Samples were obtained by the exposure of glycerine coated plates for 20 minutes. Further
